Draft Opponents Plan Bloc Organization

BI-PARTISAN FIGHT LIKELY AGAINST BILL

Wheeler Promises Thorough Debate on Measure In Senate Chamber.

WOODRING HITS PAY

Declares Voluntary Service Fails to Get Fair Trial at Present Wages.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Opponents of compulsory military training talked today of forming a bi-partisan bloc for a senate floor battle against peacetime conscription advocated by President Roosevelt.

Cheered by a statement of Harry H. Woodring, resigned secretary of war, senators fighting the Burke-Wadsworth bill considered trying to attach a voluntary training system to the measure empowering the president to call out the national guard and reserve officers.

Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.) told reporters that some organization of "both Republicans and Democrats will be formed to fight conscription with all the vigor we possess."

Although scoffing at the possibility that a filibuster was being organized, he said:

This thing will be thoroughly debated, and of course that debate will take considerable time."

Senator Vandenberg (R. Mich.), another critic of the draft legislation, urged that some system of voluntary enlistment for a year's army training be tried along the lines advocated by Woodring.

The former cabinet member wrote Vandenberg advocating "one year voluntary service at $30 per month." At present the minimum enlistment in the armed forces is for three years, with basic pay of $21 a month.

Woodring said that he had proposed seven months ago raising army base pay to $30 a month, but was told that it would be "inconsistent with the financial program of the administration." Higher pay attracts men to the navy and the CCC, he added.

Jamboree Show to Close Richland's 72nd Fair Tonight

The curtain goes down tonight on Richland county's 72nd annual fair after performances this afternoon and this evening.

With another estimated crowd of 6,000 on hand for performances yesterday afternoon and last night fair officials expected that the week's greatest crowd will be on the grounds today for performances of the Boone County Jamboree and Cleveland's Troop A of mounted policemen.

The Jamboree hillbilly radio entertainers and the mounted police unit will appear in a double-bill program both in the afternoon and evening.

Today is also the final three balloon-cannon ascensions, spec-

11 Arraigned, Two Receive Prison Terms

Murder Suspect Pleads Not Guilty; Marion Man Sentenced.

Eleven of 14 defendants arraigned on indictments this morning before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston pleaded guilty and two were sentenced immediately to the Mansfield and Marysville reformatories. Others were expected to receive sentences later today.

Albert Davis, 35, colored, indicted for the murder of Mrs. Lena Morton, also colored, pleaded innocent, as did James Foster, Mansfield, accused of criminally assaulting a 15-year-old Mansfield school girl.

The other innocent plea was submitted by Jerry Wilt, Ashland, indicted for obtaining $246 worth of fireworks under false pretense.

Pleading guilty to indictments for forgery, Dick Eby, 22, of Marion, was sentenced to one to 20 years in the Mansfield reformatory, while his companion, Miss Virginia Pahl, 19, Detroit, Mich., was given a similar sentence in the Marysville reformatory.

They were taken into custody by Mansfield police several weeks ago after passing a $25 forged check at a Mansfield hotel where they had been staying together. Court records showed Eby had been arrested twice before, once for highway robbery and another time for obtaining money under false pretense. He was acquitted both times.

Foster was represented in court by Atty. Joseph Ellison. Davis, accused of first-degree murder, had no counsel. No date was set for their trials, but it was expected the cases will not be heard for at least two weeks.

The 11 defendants who pleaded guilty today before Judge Huston were:

Dick Eby and Virginia Pahl, indicted for forgery; Robert Hanlon, breaking and entering; A. W. Firestone, auto theft; Jesse L. Baith, breaking and entering; Fred DeWeese, non-support; Howard C. French, carrying concealed weapons; Clinton Gipe, grand larceny; Clifford Nixon, non-support; Benjamin Zetzekos, auto theft; and J. M. Garaigan, issuing a check without funds.

ATTACK FLYNN

Republicans Open Fire on New Democratic Chairman.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Republicans opened fire today on appointment of Edward J. Flynn of New York as chairman of the Democratic national committee to succeed Postmaster-General Farley.

Rep. Halleck (R. Ind.), who placed the name of Wendell Willkie in nomination for the Republican presidential candidacy, declared that Flynn's election "is in keeping with the character of the big-city machine support that was chiefly responsible for giving Mr. Roosevelt the alleged draft nomination at Chicago."

Halleck charged Flynn with appointing Arthur (Dutch Shultz) Flegenheimer, slain gangster, as a deputy sheriff when he was sheriff of Bronx county.

When a (Blitz) Birdie Sees the Birdie

This is the somewhat subdued but still untamed bird, now identified as an American bittern, that caused great consternation on Main street yesterday, after trying to crash, the plate glass window of a cafe.

As can be seen, he was quite unwilling to pose for a picture and it was only after a strong rubber band had been placed around his sharp beak that Ken Woodman, News-Journal staff member, agreed that it would be safe to hold the bird for Photographer Harold Valentine. If Woodman had had another hand, he might have held those flopping wings, but maybe that would have detracted from the picture.

BLITZBIRD FREE, JOINS HIS PALS

And He's 'Thunder-Pumping' to His Winged Friends That Humans Are 'Teched.'

By KEN WOODMAN

A happy little American bittern is running down a reedy patch of shore along Armstrong's run south of Ontario today "thunder-pumping to his pals that humans are the craziest birds.

For, "thunder-pumping" is the term used by bird lovers to describe the cry of the "blitzbird" which crashed into a display window of the White Electric company on South Main street Thursday night and was captured by Marvin Matthes, proprietor of the Office cafe.

The bittern earned his title of blitzbird when, recovering from the daze of his crash, he pecked ferociously at Matthes and the men who had assisted with the capture.

"Keep away—Vicious!" was the sign Matthes and his friends placed on the perforated cardboard box in which they placed their captive.

And all through yesterday morning the bird performed as advertised. When curious visitors or cafe employes came near the box he lashed out through the vent holes with his four-inch beak—straight for the eyes of the visitor

$200,000 FIRE

Gasoline-Fed Blaze Sweeps Half City Block.

NEWARK, N. J.—(INS)—Loss in the gasoline-fed fire that swept half a city block, encompassing eight homes and two industrial plants, was estimated today at $300,000. The blaze was reported to have broken out Thursday night in the boiler room of the I. Becker Trucking company.

Mansfielder Tells About Willkie In His Boyhood

Sunday's News-Journal to Have Interview Story With Boyhood Chum; There'll Be a Lot of Other Features.

IF YOU can't meet Wendell Willkie personally you can at least meet one of his boyhood friends, now a Mansfielder, in the Sunday edition of The News-Journal. Robert E. Rogers takes you along for an interview with James Brownscombe who went to high school in Elwood, Ind., with the Republican presidential nominee.

In her "Do You Remember" series Jane Williams presents a group of 1910 city officials and pictures of early street scenes in the city.

Virgil A. Stanfield has taken a look through the marriage license records at the courthouse and found out that young men today are not rushing to the altar to avoid possible conscription as they did in 1917. He gives you comparative figures.

Henry G. Brunner is a commuting farmer. And Harold Valentine who interviewed him this week for another in the "City Farmer" series agrees that his farm on Galion road is worth commuting to. Five pictures help to prove the point.

George Sattler brings a "bon voyage" story from Battery D which is off to the mock war at Sparta, Wis., next week. There are pictures of the battery in action and comments from Major Coleman Todd on the place of the national guard in the new defense picture.

An entertaining goat story butts into the Sunday edition, too. And there are colored comics, fiction, cross quiz puzzle, sports and society news, information of interest to home makers and home owners, columns by nationally-known writers, and COMPRESSED INTO PAGES WHERE YOU CAN GET IT WHEN AND WHERE YOU WANT IT, THE UP-TO-THE-MINUTE STORY OF WORLD NEWS.

HURT IN MISHAP

Mansfield Driver Injured as He Falls Asleep at Wheel.

John Vrbanac, 20, of 350 Ruth avenue, is confined to General hospital with a fractured vertebra sustained at 1:45 a. m. today when the automobile he was driving overturned four miles north of Perrysville on route 39.

The car turned over when Vrbanac failed to negotiate a curve in the road, according to highway patrolmen. Vrbanac told officers he fell asleep while driving.

His condition was reported as "fair" by hospital attendants this morning.

JOBS FILLED

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Public employment offices placed 79,605 persons in private industrial jobs in Ohio and 1,500,000 throughout the country in the first six months of 1940. The federal security administration report showed today.

MANSFIELDERS MEET DEATH ON VACATION TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Horchler Killed as Truck Hits Mule, Crashes Their Auto.

BOTH DIE INSTANTLY

Accident Near St. Elmo, Ill., Injures Four Others In Orchestra Party.

Two Mansfielders, Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Horchler, both 31, of Lexington avenue road, were killed instantly early today while returning from a vacation trip that had taken them into Canada and through the middle west.

The accident occurred at 4:15 a. m. when an orchestra truck hit a mule that was loose on U. S. 40 three miles east of St. Elmo, Ill., and swerved head-on into the Horchler automobile, it was learned.

Coroner Ross Carson, Effingham county, Illinois, who was holding an inquest this morning said that death of both Mansfielders was instantaneous.

The bodies were removed to the Kevin Brown funeral home, in St. Elmo, where they were identified through birth certificates which both Mr. and Mrs. Horchler were carrying.

Four persons in the Red Maxfield orchestra truck, which struck the Horchler car, were reported seriously injured and were removed to Effingham hospital, authorities said. The orchestra truck was from Champaign, Ill.

St. Elmo is about 80 miles southeast of Springfield, capital of Illinois.

First word of the tragedy was received here by police, over their short wave radio system.

It was through this message that identity of the couple was finally established.

Mr. and Mrs. Horchler left Mansfield two weeks ago, relatives said, on a vacation trip that took them first to Canada. They believe the couple may have driven west from Canada, and were on

SPAN TO OPEN

Grade Elimination on 30-N to Be Finished Within Week.

The new $150,000 grade elimination project on route 30-N near Crestline will be ready for traffic in a week or 10 days and probably will be completed ahead of schedule, Murray D. Shaffer, Ashland division state highway engineer, said today.

One-way traffic is using the new overhead structure now, since the cement roadway over the project has been poured. Traffic has been using a "run-around detour since the route was closed.

Major contracts for the job are held by George B. Herring and Son, Mansfield contractors, and the Purdy Construction company, Mansfield. Actual cost of the overhead structure will be $121,729, with the right-of-way cost boosting the total expense to about $150,000.

Risks Friction With America In East Indies

New Envoy Says Nippon Looks Forward To 'Emancipation' of Dutch Far Eastern Possessions and of Other Oriental Areas.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Japanese Ambassador Kensuke Horinouchi arranged an appointment with Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles today (12:30 p. m.) in order to make representations against the United States' embargo on exports of aviation gasoline. Horinouchi was understood to be acting upon instructions from Tokyo.

BULLETIN

LONDON — (UP) — Japanese Ambassador Mamoru Shigemitsu made strong representations to Great Britain, it was stated in Japanese sources today, in connection with the arrest of prominent Japanese businessmen under the drastic alien regulations for security of the state.

(By International News Service)

While Great Britain and Germany traded punches in blow-for-blow aerial warfare, Japan leaped to the forefront of the world stage today as the Anglo-Japanese diplomatic struggle intensified and Tokyo revived the issue of the Dutch East Indies.

General Kuniaki Koiso, Japan's new special envoy to the Netherlands Indies, told correspondents that Japan, at risk of "friction with the United States," looks forward to "emancipation" of Dutch far eastern possessions and other oriental regions.

Asserting that the Netherlands Indies have been "exploited and oppressed for a long time as a foreign colony," he added:

"Emancipation of the oriental peoples is destined to be carried out by every means."

General Koiso's remarks immediately recalled the fact that American Secretary of State Cordell Hull some time ago sternly warned Japan to keep hands off the Netherlands Indies.

In London Anglo-Japanese relations headed toward a new climax with revelation that two prominent business men had been arrested. It was announced that the Japanese embassy will file a protest.

These arrests followed charges published by two London newspapers that a Japanese sabotage ring is operating throughout the British empire "to the detriment of Britain."

While the far eastern diplomatic pot boiled, Nazi air raiders carried out a new series of attacks on the British Isles, causing further de-

SNAPPY: U. S. Navy Believes In Quick Victory Over Japs

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The navy high command believes that Japan would last only three weeks in a war with the United States, it was learned authoritatively today.

It would require only three weeks, the admirals are convinced, for the navy to vanquish the Japanese sea forces, after which Nippon would either have to capitulate or be faced with slow starvation by blockade.

The U. S. fleet was in position to "surround and demolish" Japan's navy less than three months ago, according to information obtained by International News Service.

At that time — in May — the American battle force steamed out of its base at Honolulu and was gone—whereabouts unknown—for 10 days. Immediately after it returned to its base, Fleet Commander Admiral J. O. Richardson flew from Hawaii to Washington and it is understood, told President Roosevelt that:

At that time the Japanese fleet was maneuvering in the Caroline and Marshall islands.

When the U. S. fleet left Honolulu, it steamed westward toward these islands, turning back only when Richardson was satisfied that his position would have assured an American victory, had battle been joined.

The navy's views, it was learned, were chiefly responsible for President Roosevelt's decision to em-

STRATEGIC: Dakar Would Be Important Base for Germans

By J. W. T. MASON
(United Press War Expert.)

Announcement that German technicians have arrived at Dakar, capital of French West Africa, invites the interpretation that their visit may be associated with reports of Nazi ambitions in the western hemisphere. Dakar is the first French colonial center known to have opened itself to German investigation since France's capitulation. If Dakar were to pass into Germany's possession after the war, Hitler would possess the best strategic base along the entire east Atlantic seaboard for striking at the western hemisphere through the West Indies.

Dakar harbor can accommodate the largest ships. It is a naval station of considerable size with a dry dock and arsenal, which could be enlarged without difficulty. It also is an airport ideally situated for trans-Atlantic operations.

Dakar has long been recognized as occupying a commanding position between western Europe and the territories abutting the Gulf of Mexico.

Dakar is directly opposite Martinique, making the port the nearest base for a naval and air offensive against the West Indies any European power could possess. The distance of 2,500 miles could be crossed by an air armada in eight hours at present and within the near future perhaps five or six hours as airplane speed increases.

If operations against the United States ever were attempted on a major scale by a trans-Atlantic enemy, establishment of an impregnable base in the West In-

1908 Prophecy That Chilled Dad Too True to Be Funny

(By Associated Press)

SEATTLE—"Terrific explosions," wrote Arthur B. Reeve, "will rend huge, jagged holes in the earth; tons of metal will crash suddenly from the clear blue sky."

The year was 1908, and Reeve was writing an article for a magazine which carried on its photographs of William Howard Taft, William Jennings Bryan and Theodore Roosevelt.

But Reeve was not thinking of those calm gentlemen. His article was entitled "newest man-killing devices and the warless age."

Among the devices, he said, would be aerial torpedoes, anti-air-craft guns, mine-laying motorcars, electric artillery.

"This," he declared "is war—war in 1938."

The peculiarly prophetic article, which appeared in the November, 1908 issue of Hampton's Broadway magazine, was brought to attention by J. N. Farrar, a salesman who discovered the issue in a collection of old periodicals.

Some of Reeve's other predictions for the 1938 war:

Dirigibles advancing under the protection of manufactured clouds.

Seismographs used to locate "noiseless, smokeless, flashless" artillery.

Spectorscopes used to detect presence of aerial gases.

Armored cars which would dig trenches by blasting while moving at high speed.

Tiny submarines which would be launched from battleships.

Flights "from London to Paris, New York to Boston, by projectile."

Describing a battle scene in the war of 1938—where "a constant rain of steel bullets whips about everything that moves," Reeve wrote:

"Nothing can be seen in that valley of death except effects: the causes are hidden with all the ingenuity of which the human brain is capable.

Everything is tense with a nerve-wracking suspense such as ancient warfare never knew. Heroism has taken on a new meaning; it consists in being here at all."

In defense of his own prophecy, he said:

"Is this the dream of a Munchausen, an idle flight of fancy? Not a bit of it. The cold, grim fact of the matter is that practically every engine of destruction that will make war so diabolical is invented, today, 1908."

The editors of Hampton's Broadway magazine injected the only sour note into Reeve's prognosticating. An editor's note accompanying the article declared.

"War in 1938 might bankrupt the world. Mr. Reeve presents some terrible facts by authority of the foremost living inventors of war engines and agencies. They mean that the end of war is probably in sight."

Congressional Liberals Rally to Aid Hiram Johnson

SEN. WHEELER LEADS REVOLT IN PARTY ROW

Praises Californian After President Expresses Opposite View.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's open break with Sen. Hiram W. Johnson today resulted in congressional liberals rallying to the Californian's standards.

The president may have touched off a new political war when he conceded Johnson had been a liberal and progressive Democrat for many years but added he did not think any one of his wildest dreams could regard the Californian as a liberal or progressive Democrat in the year 1940. In effect, the president asked California progressives and Democrats to repudiate Johnson, who seeks renomination this year for the senate on the Republican, Democratic and Progressive tickets.

Johnson won all three nominations in 1934, with the president's personal blessings.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, Montana Democrat, led the liberal rally to Johnson. Crossing party lines, Wheeler endorsed Johnson and praised his liberalism—in direct conflict with the president's opinion. Wheeler said:

"Hiram Johnson did more to carry the west for Mr. Roosevelt with his great speech in 1932 than any other man. I consider him one of the great liberals of the country. Indeed, he is not only a great liberal but a great statesman."

"The greatest issue before the people today is to keep our country out of war and prevent conscription, which is not only illiberal but undemocratic and smacking of totalitarianism. Most real liberals today are opposed to both—to war and conscription. And I understand that Hiram Johnson is opposed to both."

The Roosevelt-Johnson story forms a curious page of American political history. In 1928, Johnson endorsed and supported his fellow Californian, Herbert Hoover for the presidency. After Hoover entered the White House, he fell out with Johnson.

In 1932, Johnson abandoned his party, broke openly with Hoover and endorsed Roosevelt for the presidency.

In 1934, Roosevelt endorsed Johnson for re-election to the senate and the senator won overwhelmingly. A year later, Johnson led the senate's successful fight to reject American adherence to the world court, a step asked by Roosevelt. In 1937, Johnson was a leader in the senate's rejection of the president's proposal to enlarge the supreme court. That fight apparently ended their friendship.

Mansfielders and Ohio Civil War Vets Meet Today

Ohio veterans of the Civil war and members of the organizations identified with them, including a number of persons from Mansfield, were in high spirits today at Sandusky as they prepared to hold an old time campfire tonight. The three-day reunion of the Ohio Civil War Veterans Association opened in that city yesterday.

A resplendent figure at the conclave was Thomas Ridenaur, 94, Crestline Civil war veteran who was elected state commander of the G. A. R. early in June. He was an impressive and stirring figure in his new Civil war uniform bearing a gold insignia.

From Los Angeles came O. H. Castle, formerly of Champaign county, Ohio, who said that "no distance is too great for a reunion with my old buddies." Most of the 30 veterans attending the reunion are nearing the century mark.

Carl F. Sattler, Mansfield formerly state commander of the Sons of Union Veterans, and general chairman of the 1940 reunion, was among the Mansfielders in attendance. Mrs. Sattler is secretary of the Ohio Civil War Veterans association.

The meeting is scheduled to extend through Sunday, when Governor John Bricker and Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland will address the group.

President Roosevelt, commander-in-chief of the American army, sent [illegible] to the veterans.

"The venerable survivors of the conflict which seems so far away to the rising generations, richly deserve all the honors that can be accorded them and I hope the reunion will be a happy event in the lives of the veterans and all who gather with them."

Among the most ardent collectors of sales tax stamps in the city are members of the police department. The entire department is working on a project, which is to collect enough stamps to purchase an artificial leg for a Senior high school student who lost his leg as the result of a hunting accident. Modern artificial limbs are so wonderfully constructed that wearers scarcely limp. But they are expensive and it will take a lot of sales tax stamps to do the trick. Police already have enough that the redemption value will amount to about $100 but they will need that many more. If you aren't saving yours for some other charity, you might turn them over to the cop on the corner.

Several weeks ago an announcement went out from Westbrook Country club that there would be no guests served who came into the dining room after 8:30 p. m., during the summer. The announcement was signed by Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Henkel, chairmen of the social committee. There was some little objection from the members who like to eat their dinners very late, but the rule held and has been strictly enforced. Last night Mr. and Mrs. Henkel and a party of about 20 came into the club dining room at 8:40—and were informed that they were just ten minutes too late. The party took it good naturedly and all of them left to seek their steaks elsewhere.

PLAN FUNERAL OF J. H. M'CARL

First 'Watchdog of Treasury' Often Said 'No' to Some of Nation's Leaders.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Arrangements for the funeral of J. H. McCarl, first comptroller general of the United States and known for 15 years as "the watchdog of the treasury," are to be made today.

McCarl, who was 61, and who served under four presidents, died of a heart attack at his Washington office yesterday. He retired in 1936, after a full 15-year term as comptroller general, during which he was in frequent dispute with federal officials over expenditures that he believed unauthorized.

Only day before yesterday President Roosevelt nominated Rep. Lindsay Warren (D) N. C. to become comptroller general, after former Sen. Fred H. Brown, who succeeded McCarl, was forced to retire by ill health.

Hailing from McCook, Neb., Sen. Norris' home town, McCarl became well known for the many times he said "no" to famous men and made it stick.

He once refused to allow Gen. John J. Pershing pullman fare. He said "no" when labor Secretary James J. Davis tried to charge the government for a deluxe suite on an ocean liner. He told state department diplomats the $10 tips they gave steamship stewards would have to come out of their own pockets.

On another occasion, a federal employe presented an expense account containing a $1.50 item for luncheon purchased in a small Virginia town. Refusing payment, McCarl observed that "there is no place in Virginia where one can buy a lunch worth $1.50."

New Dealers, harried by McCarl's blue-pencilling, got an opinion from the attorney general designed to dissuade the comptroller.

"Persuasive, but not compelling," he remarked when it was presented—and went on saying "no."

CONN AND SCRIPTS ENGAGE IN PRIVATE DEBATE ON DRAFT

(Scene: Two Mansfielders between the ages of 21 and 31 meet at the corner of Main street and Park avenue west. For reasons which ought to be obvious we'll call them Conn and Scripts.)

CONN: A bit drafty, isn't it?

SCRIPTS: So you've had wind of that, too?

CONN: Yeah. Henry Stimson rode through a senate committee meeting the other day yelling, "The Nazis are coming!"

SCRIPTS: So what?

CONN: So now they want me to give up my $1200-a-year job and my personal freedom and join the army.

SCRIPTS: I still say, "So what?" Your country calls.

CONN: And I'll answer. We'll all answer. But I don't like it.

SCRIPTS: Personally, I don't either. But this thing is bigger than just you and me. It's as big as the nation itself. It's a matter of defending everything the nation stands for.

CONN: You mean conscription?

SCRIPTS: We haven't been talking about the weather.

CONN: It didn't save France. They had had it for years.

SCRIPTS: The weather?

CONN: No, universal compulsory military training.

SCRIPTS: But it may have saved a lot of poilus. At least they tell me I ought to be glad to get the training so that I won't go into the war and get myself shot like a rookie.

CONN: Nice of them. And we might defend a few "investments" too.

SCRIPTS: Don't talk like a post-war propagandist—"War settles nothing." "Make the world safe for the international bankers"—I've heard it all. None of it alters the fact that if England gets licked we're faced with the threat of invasion.

CONN: How do you know?

SCRIPTS: Why it just stands to reason. If Hitler can down England, it'll only inspire him to go on to world conquest.

CONN: And if he can lick all the rest of the world in a year or so, I suppose we can stop him when the experts tell us we can't possibly be prepared before a couple of years?

SCRIPTS: We can try.

CONN: Yes, we can try. And I'm willing to give up my time and my share of my earnings to do it. But I have no more intention of giving up what this country stands for to a politician than to an invader. I say if we think we've got to fight Hitler let's get ready to go right over to his own front yard and do it. Let's prepare ourselves to be "invaders." Nobody ever won a fight by just blocking a punch. And if we're going to have conscription let's conscript everybody, all ages and nobody excepted.

SCRIPTS: You'd disrupt the nation. You'd throw everything out of balance.

CONN: So would an invasion, pal. If we're really in danger let's face it. Let's all get in and pitch, married men, business men, government officials, old men and boys. Let's get out and drill every night in the week and on Saturdays and Sundays. Business can still go on. People seem to be able to take a couple of weeks off for vacations, maybe they could take a month off every year to learn to defend their country.

SCRIPTS: Aw, for Pete's sake!

CONN: And the boys and the old men, the married men, the business men and the government officials have a right to be trained, too, so they won't go out and get shot like rookies when we get invaded.

SCRIPTS: But wars aren't fought that way!

CONN: That's what they tried to tell Hitler.

SCRIPTS: Yeah, but he's dizzy.

CONN: So am I.

(This last remark of Conn's refers not to the foregoing conversation but to a feeling that has come over him a sight of a very attractive young lady who has just walked past. Proving that the world is not entirely out of joint, at any rate.)

BOOK ALASKAN TRIAL EARLIER THAN PLANNED

Ski-Equipped Bombers Made Ready for Flights at Fairbanks Station.

WASHINGTON—Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, air corps chief, revealed today that the army will undergo its first extensive Arctic weather flying tests in Alaska next November, a full year ahead of schedule. The tests will be conducted in temperatures ranging down to 70 degrees below zero.

Arnold's disclosure was contained in a report to Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, after an 11-day aerial inspection tour of the army's new aviation centers in Alaska.

He said the work there was well ahead of schedule and that the new $7,000,000 "test station" at Fairbanks, one of the most vital laboratories in the national defense program, would be ready for operation this November.

The Fairbanks station will afford the army its first complete test of the latest-type aircraft and motors, guns bombs and equipment in actual performance in temperatures ranging from 50 to 70 degrees below zero. In the past, the army has been forced to limit tests to brief experiments in cold weather in Sun Valley, Ida., and Maine.

The more rigid tests were decided upon after secret reports on European armament developments during the Russo-Finnish war last winter from some of its ace observers that were sent to check on the performance of military equipment in sub-zero climes.

During the winter months, it is planned to test new huge ski-equipped bombers which will be sent to Alaska in October. Special methods for quickly warming engines, heating oil supplies, and testing performance of machine guns, bombs and other weapons in the low temperatures will be tried. During the summer the planes will be equipped with floats.

GETS $200 FINE

Mansfield Man Loses Driving Rights for Year.

Dana Jordon, 174 Johns avenue, lost his driving rights for a year and was fined $200 and costs in municipal court this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended $75 of the fine on payment of $68 damages to Mack Reed, 202 South Main street, whose car was damaged in a collision with a machine driven by Jordon on North Mulberry street just north of the Erie railroad yesterday.

Pleading guilty to a charge of unsafe driving, John C. Staley, Springfield, was fined $15 and costs. He was arrested on U. S. route 42 south of Mansfield by state highway patrolmen.

Clyde W. Collins, Marion, pleaded guilty to failing to stop when entering U. S. route 42 at Grace street and was given a $5 fine.

Isaac Tiktin, 29, Cleveland, charged with unsafe driving, will be arraigned Aug. 7. He was arrested yesterday by state highway patrolmen and released on $25 bond.

SHORT ILLNESS CAUSES DEATH

GALION—Funeral services for George Wilcox, jr., 17-year-old Galion high school freshman, who died unexpectedly early today of meningitis at his home here, were held at 4 p. m. today at the Snyder funeral home. Burial was in Fairview cemetery.

He had been ill three days and is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wilcox, sr.; three brothers, Clifford, James and Almon at home; and five sisters, Mrs. Imo Finfrock of Crestline, Mrs. Merle Sharrock of Galion and Genevieve, Dorothy and Geraldine at home.

GARNER RETURNS

Vice President to Wield Gavel for Senate Again.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Sen. Edward R. Burke, (D. Neb.) a close friend of Vice President John N. Garner, said today that Garner will return to Washington early next week to preside over the senate during debate on the controversial conscription bill.

Garner and his wife left here July 22 for their Uvalde, Tex., home. Some of his friends said he was displeased over the Democratic national convention's nomination of President Roosevelt for a third term and that he probably would not return.

Not That It Matters

About That Symposium on The Draft, Candidates and Dilemma of the Democrats

—By JANE WILLIAMS

NINETY per cent of Mansfield young men between the ages of 21 and 31 are opposed to compulsory military training under present circumstances, according to a survey made by The News-Journal this week.

If I had read that in some out of town newspaper and didn't know the boys, I would be inclined to get hot under the collar and mutter about the present generation's lack of patriotism.

But I happen to know personally about two thirds of the boys whose opinions were solicited; boys from many walks of life, and I know that they are patriotic and sound citizens.

When I talk to them, they all but convince me that they are right, that there is no immediate emergency, that when the emergency arises, there will be time enough to draft and train an army.

But afterward I remember with cold chills making a runway of my spine, that France and England, only six months ago, were certain that there was no "immediate emergency" even though there was a state of war existing between them and Germany.

Maybe there isn't any immediate danger for us. But just suppose there is. Just suppose we are as tragically mistaken as were France and England. Then what?

I have a feeling that it is better to be overly-excited and prepared, than to be calm now and sorry later.

HOW long do you think it takes to teach a man to handle a gun?" one of the boys demanded. "Any one with ordinary intelligence should master the art of shooting the other fellow in about a week."

That's right. And you can teach a man to kick a football straight in about a week. But how long does it take to make a crack football player of a man? How long does it take him to learn perfect teamwork? How long to learn to carry the ball down the field surrounded by enemies? How long for a team to learn to think as one man and to act in unison?

And with the highly mechanized and motorized equipment required for modern warfare, it will take longer to make a good soldier than to turn out a good football player.

MY OWN conviction is that there is an emergency and that the only way we can possibly be sure of saving our necks is to establish an army quickly. I admit I am afraid of a peace-time conscription, but I am a thousand times more afraid of what could happen to us if we are not sufficiently prepared for an emergency.

I have always considered the Atlantic and Pacific as our Maginot lines and scouted the idea of an enemy breaking through them. Now I remember that the modern way is not to break through the line, but to find a way around it and to attack from the inside of the line.

If that attack should be made within the next year or two, there will be several million nice young American boys who are going to have to carry ball down the field without training and without a trained team to back them up.

NOTES ON THE CUFF—How easy it would be to draft an army if there were a million men as co-operative on a draft as was President Roosevelt. . . . A bunch of World war boys were discussing the proposal to pay draftees $21.50 a month, and one of them unconsciously hummed: "You'll never get rich, tra la la la la la, You're in the army now." . . . Mansfield woman, a native of Rumania, received a letter from relatives in that country this week. Said every family must feed soldiers whether they can afford it or not, and that every vineyard in Rumania must be plowed up this fall for wheat fields. . . . Columnist Eleanor Roosevelt gives up writing about robins, sunsets and shopping tours to castigate the Democrats who have bolted. Don't blame her a bit. It's her husband she is defending—and robins and sunsets do get a bit boring. . . .

ON THE other hand you can't blame George White for bolting the New Deal party. If you'd been purged as often as he has, you'd bolt too. Twice governor and twice congressman, George had a right to aspire to a senatorial toga, but when he ran in 1936, the president entered his own man, "Uncle" Charley West, who was defeated; and in 1938 when George White again tried for the senate, the president went right into White's own bailiwick and "purged" him in favor of Senator Bulkley—who was also defeated in the general election.

George would have to be pretty much of a door mat to support the president after that. 'Taint human to expect it.

But look at the predicament in which it leaves the local Roosevelt fans who worked so hard for George during the gubernatorial primaries! He was just exactly the man for governor then, and they praised him to the skies. Now they have to backtrack and think up other names for him.

And some of the names I've heard aren't in Godey's Lady Book.

FOUR more weeks, 20 more working days (have a day off each week) until vacation time. Still seems farther away than Christmas. Makes a nice game to watch the others in the office and to mutter: "Their vacations will be gone and forgotten while I still have mine to look forward to."

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's only fair, since football coaches over the country soon will begin their annual 10-week headaches, to let them in on the infallible system of Coach William Frawley.

Good old Bill—as the alumni might say—never has lost a game, and this is his eighth year at it. It's true his season's usually include only one game, but the system still works. Right now Bill is coaching at Pacific Coast U., his star ball-packer is Wayne Morris, and the game—I mean movie—is prophetically entitled "Touchdown."

Good old Bill's system varies from game to game, but it always produces the same result: Victory, either by a touchdown or a field goal or a point after touchdown just as the final gun pops. There are various ways to achieve this end, but the one that never fails is the last-minute note from the hero's girl-friend in the stands, a note saying all is forgiven and she is his and not that city slicker's. Once the substitute races in, bearing this message, the game is in the bag. Frawley's never seen it fail.

Hal LeRoy, at the age of five, was a cripple from spinal meningitis. At seven he took up dancing, spurred by the proficiency of Negro children he saw on the streets of Memphis, where his family had moved from his native Cincinnati. Today, a lean, tall, limber-limbed youth, he's one of the stage's top steppers.

Hollywood has him now for "Too Many Girls." He didn't care for the town his last trip out, in 1937. He was signed for "Start Cheering" and arrived to learn that nobody knew what his role would be. Al Rogell, the sympathetic director, didn't know either—but they invented one.

Hal chuckles as he tells one of those good Hollywood yarns on himself. "My first day," he says, "nobody told me where to go, so I found a stage with a sign over the door that said 'LeRoy Company' and I went in. They were shooting and I watched them work about an hour and then I asked somebody what I was supposed to do. He didn't know, and I mentioned the sign and said I was LeRoy. And then I found out that the sign meant Mervyn LeRoy, the director, and there I was, a greenhorn, horning in . . . They didn't let me forget it, you bet!"

Ben Hecht, the producer who baits producers, is skimming along through his picture, "Before I Die." His record: four days ahead of schedule the first week; seven days ahead the second week. He is author, director, and actor as well as producer.

The acting was an afterthought. He sought first Ernst Lubitsch, then Alfred Hitchcock, for the role of a city tramp; when they were "unavailable," Hecht awarded the bit to himself.

He is a little worried, however, about this smoothness and speed. He's afraid he should have had a Search, to give his production dignity. Every producer who is any shakes as a producer has a Search. He figures he could start a Search, maybe, for Something to Search For.

struction in the Bristol channel area.

One German raider scattered forty incendiary bombs and several high-explosive missiles on working-class districts in Wales. Many fires were started and considerable damage done.

An official announcement stated that bombs were dropped on northeastern Scotland, the English midlands, southeast England and the Bristol channel district.

A salvo of bombs, not mentioned in the communique, also exploded near a southeast Scottish coastal town.

It asserted, however, that no substantial damage was caused except around the Bristol channel, where bombs fell on a residential district, damaging a church, a school and other buildings.

A few "minor" casualties resulted from the raids, the announcement added.

Later in the morning another batch of German planes appeared over southeastern England.

An enemy plane also appeared over a Welsh town late this morning but dropped no bombs.

The latest Nazi aerial blows followed claims in London that day and night British bombings have "pulverized" Germany's chief seaport of Hamburg and damaged military objectives in more than 100 other reich cities and towns.

During the night German planes flew over virtually every sector of England and many parts of Wales, and some dropped bombs on southeastern districts, where heavy explosions were heard.

Meanwhile British authorities charged that three German planes last week bombed and machine-gunned a lightship tender off the coast, wounding some of the 69 lighthouse men aboard the vessel. The bombs, however, did not hit the tender.

An official announcement stated that the mighty British air offensive against Germany's war machine continued relentlessly with new raids against reich objectives, including the huge Krupp armament plant at Essen, the Bremen harbor, the Focke-Wulf aircraft plant, scores of airdromes, canals and railways.

(Indicating a new British raid on Bremen during the night, NBC in New York reported that the Bremen radio station suddenly ceased broadcasting and had not resumed operations at an early hour Saturday.)

Britain Replies With Bombing Raids

LONDON — (U.P.) — Britain has replied to a new German "surrender or die" warning with more merciless bombing raids on Germany, it was disclosed today.

Communiques and reports of pilots said severe damage had been done to synthetic oil plants at Kamen and Reisholz and the world famous Krupp armament works at Essen.

The sudden silencing of the Bremen radio station during the night was taken to mean that British planes again were ranging over northwest Germany.

Pilots reported that at Kamen, after bombs had been dropped, "there were greenish flashes, many fires started and the whole target seemed a mass of flames." At Reisholz, pilots reported a dozen fires, which merged into one big one. Large explosions were observed at other points, and pilots said they saw one German plane dive to the ground apparently hit by one of its own anti-aircraft guns.

A single plane dropped bombs on the Krupp works for five minutes. Several hits were scored, it was asserted, and fires were started which could be seen plainly until the plane entered the clouds.

Analysis of reports showed that this bombing raid was confined almost entirely to the small highly industrialized area between Cologne and Dortmung in the Ruhr. Oil plants at Hamburg and supply depots at Hamm and Kerfeld were attacked. A supply depot at Mannheim, to the south, also was bombed as were several airdromes in northwest Germany.

Killed In Crash

their way home at the time of the accident.

The Horchlers had left their two children, Norma Jean, 5, and Richard, 2, at the home of Mrs. Horchler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Olinger, 118 Prospect street.

Mrs. Horchler was a nurse before her marriage to Horchler on Oct. 15, 1931. She was a graduate of Mansfield High school and St. Luke's school of Nursing at Cleveland. She had nursed at Mansfield General hospital for a year prior to her marriage.

Mr. Horchler was also a graduate of Mansfield high school, and the Marshall Flying school in Missouri. He had also attended Ohio State university. He had been employed at the Schmutzler cafe, operated by his father, Carl W. Horchler, and his uncle Philip Schmutzler.

Surviving Mrs. Horchler, in addition to the two children, are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Olinger and a brother, Harold. Her husband's survivors are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Horchler, two sisters, Helen Jean and Dorothy, a brother, Donn, and a grandmother, Mrs. Edward Schmutzler.

Repeat Threat of Imperialistic War

MOSCOW — (AP) — The Soviet Russian government newspaper Izvestia declared today that European colonial possessions threatened to spread the war into a "world imperialist war."

"There exists every reason" to expect that the conflict in the near future will enter a "new and even more cruel phase," it added.

Two days ago Premier Wyacheslaff Molotoff told the Russian parliament the western hemisphere is threatened with war as a result of imperial "appetites" in the United States.

Beaverbrook Seen In Chamberlain Job

LONDON—(U.P.)—Lord Beaverbrook, dynamic Canadian-born minister for aircraft production and newspaper proprietor, may take Neville Chamberlain's post of lord president of the council in the five-man war cabinet, it was reported today.

Official announcement was made that Prime Minister Winston Churchill had invited Beaverbrook to join the war cabinet, and it was added that he would retain his aircraft production post "for the time being."

Chamberlain, Churchill's predecessor, recently underwent an operation. It is reported that his illness has proved more serious than had been expected.

SIX SERVICES SCHEDULED FOR CAMP MEETING

Free Methodist Conference to Open Wednesday to Last Until Aug. 11.

Six services are scheduled for tomorrow in conjunction with the annual camp meeting and conference of the Free Methodist church, now in session on the church camp grounds, two miles east of the city on route 39.

Sundays' services include a prayer meeting at 6 a. m., preaching service at 11 a. m. and 2:45 and 8 p. m., Sunday school at 1:30 p. m., and a ring meeting at 6:30 p. m.

Rev. R. B. Maxwell, evangelist of Caldwell, O., will be the speaker for the 8 p. m. service. Special music will feature each service.

Camp meetings will continue until Tuesday noon, when the church's conference opens for the balance of the week. Bishop L. R. Marston, Greenville, Ill., will preside over the conference.

Evangelistic meetings are scheduled for each evening through the close of the conference, Aug. 11.

ATTEND YOUTH CAMP

Three young people from St. John's Evangelical church will leave tomorrow for Lancaster where they will attend the annual Ohio Christian Youth camp at Camp Indianola.

They are Esther Leopold, Marjorie Schmidt and Marieanne Boebel. The camp is interdenominational and is sponsored by the Ohio Council of Churches and Religious Education.

Opening tomorrow, the camp will continue through Aug. 15. Courses in religious training are offered at camp as well as instruction in hobby work. The young people are being sponsored at camp by the Sunday school and Junior Young People's society.

Rev. Paul H. Saleste, pastor of the church, will speak on "Mountaineering" during the 10 a. m. service of worship tomorrow, and on "God Will Take Care of You" during the German service at 11:10 a. m. The Ladies Aid is scheduled to meet at 2 p. m. Thursday.

OCCUPIES PULPIT

Rev. Henry Ford, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, will occupy the pulpit Sunday at the First Christian church in absence of the pastor Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger. Rev. Ford will speak during the unified service of worship at 9 a. m.

The senior choir is scheduled to rehearse at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, and the Missionary society will hold a picnic at South park Tuesday evening.

GO TO CONFERENCE

A number of Mansfielders are expected to attend sessions of the 54th annual missionary convention and Bible conference of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, of the central district, now being held at Beulah Beach on Lake Erie.

Rev. Robert G. Letourneau, Peoria, Ill., will be the speaker on tomorrow's services scheduled for 1:30 and 7:15 p. m. A half-hour program from the convention tabernacle will be broadcast daily from 8:30 to 9 a. m. over radio station WCLE, Cleveland.

SERMON TOPIC.

"Love" is the subject of the Lesson-sermon which will be read in the Churches of Christ Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: O God, thou art my God. . . . Because thy loving kindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee" (Psalms 63:1,3).

FIFTH CONCERT SERIES SUNDAY

Accordion Band To Appear at North Park Sunday.

The Accordion band of Smart's studio will furnish the music for the fifth weekly outdoor summer concert at 8 p. m. Sunday at North Lake park.

Added features of the concert will be John Bauer, accordionist, to be featured with the Three Majors, Laurence Hoffman of Shelby, marimba solo. Edward Loeckel and Eileen Schuler, accordion solo, and George Knackstedt, Rose Vetrano, Phemie Wright and Russell Doehla, vocal soloists.

The concerts are under the direction of Eugene Smart.

More than 1,000 are expected to attend the 18th annual picnic Sunday for Prince Humbert lodge, Sons of Italy, to be held at the G. B. U. grounds north of the city, according to Michael Augustine, member of the committee.

There will be refreshments and entertainment throughout the day, starting at 1:30 p. m. Games and dancing will be all-day featurese.

Other recreational features on the program include a watermelon contest for boys and one for girls under 15 years; balloon blowing contests for small boys and girls; chicken chases for men and women; sack races for boys and girls between 15 and 18 years; 100-yard dash for men and women, for 15-year-old boys and girls; 50-yard washes for 10-year-old boys and girls, and for 6-year-old boys and girls.

James Filippelli is general chairman of the picnic committee. He is being assisted by a committee of 30 members and by officers of the lodge.

PRESENT PROGRAM

The Pittenger sisters of Shelby will present a program of vocal and instrumental music in conjunction with the evening service at 7:45 tomorrow at the Christ Gospel Mission, 234 North Diamond street.

EX-LOUDONVILLE PASTOR TO TALK IN CITY SUNDAY

Rev. D. E. Miller to Be Guest Minister at Park Avenue Baptist Church.

Rev. D. E. Miller, formerly pastor of the Loudonville Baptist church, will be guest paster Sunday at the Park Avenue Baptist church during the morning service of worship at 10:30.

Music for the service includes the anthem "Lead Me Lord," to be sung by a quartet, a duet, "The Cross" by Mrs. Lawrence S. Frank and Willis Wygant, and three organ selections by Lawrence S. Frank, minister of music. He will play "Andante Cantabile," "Poem" and "Ein Feste Burg."

The Charles Huston Sunday school class will have charge of the mid-week service at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

SCHEDULE LAWN FETE.

The annual St. Paul Lutheran church lawn fete will be held Wednesday evening on the parsonage lawn, high-lighting a program of four church activities scheduled next week.

The lawn fete will begin at 5:30 p. m., and women of the Guild will serve lunches and refreshments. A postponed meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. Henry Fischer, 188 Lind avenue, and Miss Bertene Sawyer, 236 Rae avenue, will entertain members of the Mary Markley society, Tuesday evening. Miss Olga Luich will give the topic.

Regular meeting of the church council is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Monday at the church. Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor, will speak on "I Nearly Fainted" during the Sunday church service at 10 a. m.

ANNOUNCED TOPIC.

Rev. Charles F. Sheriff, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, will speak on "Does God Favor the Righteous, Economically and Physically as Well as Spiritually?" during the morning service of worship at 10:15 tomorrow.

Musical numbers will include the anthem, "Abide With Me," sung by the choir, "Thou Art Our Faith," sung as the offertory solo by Mrs. Charles F. Sheriff.

GUEST MINISTER.

Dr. R. V. Bollinger, professor of psychology and education at Ashland college, will serve as guest minister Sunday at the Lincoln Heights Church of the Brethren. He will speak on "Whatsoever He Sayeth." He will also teach the pastor's Sunday school class at 9:30 a. m.

Guest minister will occupy the church pulpit for the next three Sundays while the pastor, Rev Roland Showalter is on vacation.

GIVE TWO SERMONS

"What Is The Gospel?" and "James, An Influential Quiet Man," are the subjects of sermons Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, will deliver at that church tomorrow.

He will speak on the first subject at 9:45 a. m. and the second at 7:30 p. m. At the morning service the choir will sing two anthems, "On the Highway to Gallilee" and 'Show Me My Task," and in the evening the choir will sing "Twilight at Dawn," and Mrs. Clayson Bell, organist, will play "Offertory" as the offertory selection.

The annual picnic of the Fifth district heads the list of activities planned for the coming week. The picnic will be held at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday for members and families. The Senior Luther league meets at 6:30 p. m. Sunday at the church, council meets at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, and the Women's Missionary society meets at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the parish house.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, AUGUST 3, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—even if there isn't a policeman or highway patrolman in sight.

It was a quite unexpected relief to move from torrid July into the balmy breezes of August.

As nearly as can be ascertained at the moment, the United States is still in the blueprint stage of preparedness.

President Favors Selective Plan

AS PRESIDENT of the United States, and commander in chief of the nation's armed forces, Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday gave unqualified support to conscription for selective training and expressed hope that congress would act at this session to provide sufficient manpower to operate the war machines being assembled for the defense of America.

"I am in favor of a selective training bill and I consider it essential to adequate national defense," Mr. Roosevelt said, without endorsing specific provisions of any particular bill, or proposed amendments.

Reverting to America's World war experience, Mr. Roosevelt said that in 1917 this country created an army of four million men but that this army was unable to get into action for 13½ months after America entered the war, during which time "not a single shot was fired against us."

Defense, he emphasized, requires more than trained men on the firing line—it requires mechanics immediately behind the lines, and further behind the lines, in factories, all of whom will require training just as extensive as that necessary for front-line fighters.

Such training, said President Roosevelt, means an ultimate saving in human lives, because casualties in wartime among trained personnel are much lower than among raw recruits, and disease and accidents are at a lower average among highly skilled personnel.

The president is also in agreement with the belief of General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the U. S. army, that a system of voluntary enlistments will not meet immediate needs and that selective conscription is the most efficient way to handle the problem.

Just what effect this expression of the president's views will have on congress is problematical as a determined effort will probably continue through the next few days to substitute a try-out of one-year voluntary enlistments instead of immediate application of the conscription plan.

It has also been proposed that base pay in the army be increased from the present $21 a month to $30, so as to make enlistment more attractive.

As it now appears, chief objectors to compulsory selective service are those who believe there is no existing emergency that justifies such drastic action, or who are confident that voluntary enlistments for one year's training would meet all defensive requirements.

That, at least, was the trend of local views, as quoted in yesterday's News-Journal, which follow along lines of congressional opposition to the Burke-Wadsworth bill now under consideration.

It is entirely proper, in a democracy, for every person to freely express his beliefs on any subject—and to convey his views to those who have been chosen to represent him in the administration of government. That is what is now being done.

When decisions have been made, based on the best judgment of those upon whom great responsibility has been placed, it will become a duty of good citizenship to make whatever individual sacrifices are deemed necessary for the safety and preservation of the United States of America.

May Test Gibraltar's Strength

HITLER'S troops in Spain seem to be aiming for the Rock of Gibraltar. Some of his other preparations point to attempted invasion of the Isles themselves by way of Ireland. Surprise has been one of the most potent Hitler weapons so far—and this time Britain is trying not to be surprised. She is watching all the avenues of approach. She is, moreover, taking the offensive where that is at all possible. Air-fields, docks, oil stations are being bombed daily with more precision and effect than the Nazi censorship likes to admit. Only by way of the Nazi hesitation and delay is the extent of the damage guessed by outsiders.

The Rock itself used to be regarded as impregnable. Even with the air attacks at present possible, with the forced co-operation of Spain with all the mechanized power now available, it will be a good hard job to break the British hold. The civil population is being evacuated, and food and supplies of all sort are now laid in for a long siege.

Toscanini and America

PLAYERS in the recently returned N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra have told how their conductor, Arturo Toscanini, celebrated the Fourth of July. They were in Montevideo on our national holiday. Toscanini called them together for what they expected to be an early morning rehearsal. When they were assembled he said:

"You are Americans and you are far from home. I have called you together to play 'The Star-Spangled Banner'."

The men played as they had never played before, with no audience but the United States minister to Uruguay. All were deeply moved by Toscanini's act.

It is easy to understand that the Italian-born musician who has defied dictators in the name of the freedom of art and who has recognized that music speaks a universal language, above race and nationalism, has a special feeling of gratitude and appreciation for American independence and democracy.

War Shortens Skirts

GILBERT ADRIAN, stylist of a large movie studio, maintains that wars always shorten skirts. He says the scarcity of wool will make all skirts shorter by winter. Just why economy should call for long sleeves and high necks, he does not say. Maybe the little extra jackets so much in vogue the last few years will disappear and one long sleeve do the work of one and a half.

Dress materials will tend to be domestic rather than imported, Mr. Adrian adds—a prophecy which is easily explained by lack of shipping.

A further prophecy might be ventured—that useful knitting and making-over for refugees and guest children will take the place of fancy quilt-making and embroidery to employ the leisure time of many women.

I'LL BE SEEING YOU NEXT WINTER, ADOLF

Betting Odds Favor Roosevelt, 3-2

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Betting odds today, as reported from New York and other places where commissioners handle such business, substantially favor the re-election of President Roosevelt for a third term. In this they accurately reflect the opinion of most observers.

It is the cold judgment of most Washington newspaper correspondents, for example, that there will have to be more of an upset than has so far been indicated to give Wendell Willkie a chance.

With a few rare exceptions Washington correspondents do not go in much for betting. One of the very best has often told this writer that he never bets, as he finds that to do so influences his own judgment, making it less cold than it would otherwise be. Incidentally this violated his rule for a very small amount two years ago, and lost! He had underestimated the strength of the swing against the Administration.

BUT the question of what the odds ought to be has been put to a number of men whose predictions are generally excellent towards the end of a campaign, after they have traveled over the country studying conditions at first hand. A cross section of their replies is very close to three to two in favor of Roosevelt.

Bets of ten to one that Roosevelt would beat Willkie were made at Philadelphia, but the possibility is that these were propaganda bets. They were made BEFORE his nomination, and were quite possibly inspired by a desire to defeat him in the convention race. Obviously they were made by men who were advocating other candidates.

But getting back to the present, the reasons why the odds favor Roosevelt is very simple. As pointed out in previous dispatches, Roosevelt can be re-elected without New York. But Willkie MUST carry New York to have a chance. The alternative is to break the Solid South, and despite all the mutterings down below the Mason's and Dixon line the chances are rather slim.

Take Virginia, for example. Senator Carter Glass has certainly made his position against a third term clear. In addition, he differs sharply with the president on many economic issues, especially the terrific spending and the unbalanced budget, which is part and parcel of it.

But Senator Glass will not bolt. He could no more bring himself to vote Republican than any other "unconstructed rebel," as Roosevelt has so often called him. He will not even go as far as "Cotton Ed" Smith, of South Carolina, who has already announced that he will not vote for Roosevelt, but of course he would not vote the Republican ticket.

Take the other two targets for that purge that didn't "take" two years ago, Senators Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, and Walter F. George, of Georgia. Neither will bolt. It might be remembered in passing that despite the failure of the president to beat Tydings in the primary in 1938, Maryland went heavily Democratic that November. In fact, every one of her six congressional districts sent a Democrat to congress, though that was a year of Republican gains!

GEORGIA didn't bolt even in 1928. Neither did South Carolina. So the Willkie backers may be right in working to break the South, but it would seem odd that the betting commissioners are sound in figuring that the odds are against its happening.

Few people realize the change in the New York situation since 1928. Jim Farley began building the Democratic organization in that year. Up to then, county after county in upstate New York did not even have Democratic watchers at its polls. The upstate Republican majorities, it was often said, were as big as might be needed to overcome the Democratic vote in New York City. In fact, it was sometimes intimated that they were held back intentionally so that they could be padded if necessary!

And in those days Harlem was Republican!

Who's "Head of the House" In 1940?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FOLKS, meet Bill! Bill's a young newspaper writer . . . hails from the South . . . and does it plenty of credit. But on one subject Bill and I disagree, and definitely. And that's Bill's insistence that—

MAN SHOULD BE THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE.

Why? Wherefore? No why's or wherefore's, says Bill belligerently. He just should. God made him to be. Time and Conditions don't made any difference.

"A male's the Nach-rul Boss of any Female, suh, an' any Wooman who presooms diff-runtly should be put in huh place."

All of which sounds as reasonable to me as a resolution to propose limiting the Sex of the Seven Seas to He's. Yet you'll find this same tradition upheld by a good majority of the males in these here United States. And the only reason the rest of them don't is—they dassn't. The Little Women won't let 'em!

Granted—which I don't!—that there ever was a sane basis for this "Head of the House" notion, at what time and under what conditions did it start? It started at a time when homes were temporary camps dependent upon the hunting male for their food and protection.

At that, they weren't any more dependent on Dad than on Mom. Having slaughtered his buffalo or scalped his foe, Dad usually sprawled out for a nice long nap with the Boys, and let Mom do the rest. It was Mom who tanned the pelts, stitched the moccasins, pieced the tents and boiled the stew. And it was Mom, I regret to say, who was as insistent as Dad on hunting down the invader and assisting in his demise. And it was Mom who saw that the corn was sown, the hides replenished and the camp moved—or else!

It was also Mom who was smart enough to sit, with her sisters, outside the Conference House and let the Mig Boys bellow and strut their stuff . . . while she snickered up where she should have had a sleeve. And, at that, kept said Big Boys content while she ran the actual works; it was jake with her. And didn't fool anybody.

So the world wagged on until the Machines came in and Male Jobs went out. Then, for the first time, the question of Who's Head of the House became a vital matter. For at the office desk, which had once been his, our Lord 'n' Master saw his erstwhile squaw. A sight which no gentleman could allow himself to witness without roars of rage.

"What"—he would like to know—"was that creecha doin' there? Her place, suh, is in the home!"

BUT HOW WERE THEY GOING TO EAT IF SHE STAYED THERE?

Which happens to be the crux of the whole question. But I can't for the life of me see why it should be the cause of such wrath!

The time has passed when domestic duties occupied a woman's full time and energy. And the very Machines which the males themselves, so enthusiastically endorse, were the cause of this change. When Dad turned the bake oven, wash tub, sewing machine and preserving kettle into profit-earning property, Mom's hands were left idle. Presto, she put them to work on the typewriter and filing cabinet.

WELL, WHY NOT? WHY SHOULD HER LORD AND MASTER FEEL AFFRONTED BECAUSE SHE BENDS OVER AN OFFICE DESK INSTEAD OF A HOT STOVE? AND WHY SHOULD HIS FACE BE RED BECAUSE SHE HAS PROVEN THAT SHE CAN HOLD HER PLACE IN THE WORLD OF AFFAIRS AS WELL AS HE? EVERYONE KNEW IT ANYWAY!

And, after all, what difference does it make? The real head of any successful home is neither the man nor the woman, nor any income they can jointly or individually make. THE REAL HEAD IS LOVE . . . THAT LOYAL AND TENDER LOVE WHICH SERVES WITHOUT DISTINCTION AND ACCEPTS WITHOUT RESENTMENT. That love which makes both wife and husband say:

We two are one—
For be ter or worse—
For rich or for poor—
(Even though I may be
Out of a job—
And you may have one—)
Entreat me not to leave thee
Or to return
From following after thee—
For wither thou go
I will go
And whither thou lodge
I will lodge—
(In palace or hovel—
For what do positions
Or pay checks matter—
And what does it matter
Who heads the house
If our hearts are one,
Beloved?)

Summary of Week's Happenings

Senate Delays Draft Bill Action To Consider National Guard Call

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

SENATORS were supposed to begin debating the Burke-Wadsworth bill for compulsory military training last Wednesday. Their military committee had given it a tentative okay. But this week skittishness set in.

Methodists denounced it as leading toward dictatorship. So did CIO Chieftain John L. Lewis. Senator Vandenberg asserted he was being overwhelmed with letters deploring the bill. "I've never seen anything like it," he exclaimed.

So senators began watching to see which way that fickle dame, public opinion, was heading. Apparently the president was too. Mild Senator Sheppard, the military committee head, spent the week-end with FDR but could only report he had gained the "definite impression" that FDR was for the bill.

Isolationist Senator Wheeler wondered about Republican Nominee Willkie's thoughts on the subject. He was not enlightened.

Vandenberg thought voluntary enlistment should be tried first, for a year. He was sure 1,000,000 U. S. youths would volunteer within three months.

Committee's Compromise.

Soon there was talk of compromise. FDR's good friend Senator Jimmy Byrnes proposed that only men who might logically be called up for immediate service (21 to 36 age group) should be registered.

When nervous committeemen met Tuesday to give final approval and send the bill to the senate floor, a snarl promptly developed. At this point the President sent in a request for power to call up the National Guard and ROTC.

All sides seemed relieved when this proposal was shoved in ahead of the Burke-Wadsworth bill on the docket for senate action. On Wednesday the committee accepted the amendment proposed by Byrnes.

Meanwhile senators passed easily a $25,000,000 appropriation to enable the TVA to supply more electric power for the national defense program. In doing so they bounced a light jab off the head of the Republicans' Wendell Willkie, a conspicuous opponent of TVA.

At Home

Gun-Toting Mayor.

While Atlantic City's chief of police slept Sunday night, the town's new mayor, slam-banging Tom Taggart, rounded up 40 puzzled cops. Brandishing a six-shooter he cried: "Come on, we're going places!" Blitzraids on four of the city's 22 known gambling casinos netted 32 prisoners and three truckloads of gambling devices. Taggart explained: "Certain guys around his town have shown themselves to be peculiarly immune to arrest."

Politics and Matrimony.

The job of justice of the peace for Las Vegas township in Nevada must be filled this year. It pays $25 a month excluding fees. Yet such Nevada notables as an ex-lieutenant-governor, a county assessor and a former legislator are scrambling for the job. The reason: Las Vegas is only 43 miles from California and the justice usually makes $2,000 a month by marrying Californians.

Post-Honeymoon Blues.

A common and perilous phenomenon of marriages is the tender honeymoon lovers who are heckling each other a week later. Dr. Paul Popenoe, of the Los Angeles Institute of Family Relations, sees three reasons for this: (1) increased tension; (2) the necessity for making adjustments, (3) "the passing of glamour."

"Too many present-day marriages," he believes, "have been based solely on glamour—something American women have been greatly oversold on by the movies and other sources."

Monkeys Wanted.

In the grim play, "Idiot's Delight," of 1936, a German scientist searching for a cure for cancer felt it his duty to abandon his rats and turn to death-dealing research when war broke.

In real life, Dr. Serge Voronoff of the College of France at Nice, had to abandon his research in cancer serum when his laboratory was destroyed in French-Italian fighting and his 120 monkeys were taken into the cold mountains by Italians. He's now headed for America where he hopes to procure monkeys and a lab for a fresh start.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—This column is published in 39 states and also in China, Hawaii, and Alaska.... The other day we got a letter from a reader in Shanghai, mailed May 10. . . . It concerned an essay of ours on New York's Chinatown, and it said, "Dear Mr. T. your description of the shops in Chinatown is so interesting. I almost wish I lived in New York." . . . I wonder was that guy kidding me.

Today we are indebted to a big mick named Morton Downey for an album of brand new records—all Irish—and to a horse named Swing and Sway for a new hat. Several weeks ago we got some theater tickets for a friend of ours, and he dropped us a note saying he had taken out an "interest" in our name in a horse that was to run that afternoon. The nag won and paid $7.50, which accounts for the new gray lid. Downey's records are Irish pips. . . . A "pip" in our lingo means swell. . . . Best of the lot: "The Rose of Tralee."

IRVING BERLIN grows thinner and thinner. . . . Although Linda Watkins is Boston-born, she has a mid-west huskiness to her voice that reminds me of the late Jeanne Eagles, of "Rain" fame. . . . Ray Kinney, the Hawaiian-Irish troubador who has done so well in New York for the last four years, has left Decca records for Victor. Although he has made hundreds of recordings, none has ever been made with his full orchestra. . . . Previously he has used only a piano and a few strings. . . . All who have heard Kinney's full organization will want to see what the new recordings will be like.

Eddie Dowling drops around to say that Atlantic City, and not Philadelphia, has been chosen as the jumping-off place for "The Little Dog Laughed," which is a new musical comedy that will have its premiere on August 12. This is going back a long way for Eddie, for it has been almost too long to remember since he had anything to do with musical comedies. . . . For the last three years he has been a producer of serious dramas, one of which, "Shadow and Substance," won a Drama Circle's award. Another, "Time of Your Life," won this year's Pulitzer prize. . . . But what I started out to say was that in "The Little Dog Laughed" is Paul Draper, considered by many to be superior even to Fred Astaire as a dancer.

MAYBE this move to compel women to wear hats on the street is serious after all. But it seems sort of dumb to us. . . . After all, what is wrong with a bare-headed girl? . . . Even James Montgomery Flagg has let out a blast against damsels who wear no chapeaux in the daylight. . . . "When gals go hatless in the street in the daylight, they look like Sigrid hurrying to the grocer's for a forgotten yeast cake. It's small town stuff." . . . Now this, I submit, is a fine come-off from a man who has put more pretty girls on magazine covers than probably any other illustrator. Did he ever try walking under an umbrella or dancing with a lass who wore one of those wide-brimmed horrors that are a menace to masculine eyes, ears, and noses?

Tokyo police took this note to Mrs. Melville James Cox this week, told her that her husband had written it just before leaping out a window to his death.

Cox, a British news service correspondent, was being questioned about an alleged "British espionage net." Several British business men also had been arrested.

British officials didn't accept the unsigned note as genuine, nor the spy charges as true.

Arrest of the Englishmen apparently signalled the start of a concentrated Japanese drive to eliminate European influence in the Far East and introduce the "New Order for Greater East Asia."

President Roosevelt gave the Nipponese firebrands a fright with a proclamation requiring licenses for export of aviation petroleum products and scrap iron. Japan has been obtaining 65% of her oil imports and 70% of her scrap iron here. Later, FDR placed a definite embargo on aviation gasoline.

Delivery Guaranteed!

Scarcely a trickle of trade has passed between South America and Germany since the war began 11 months ago. For trade to be resumed the British fleet would have to be eliminated from the Atlantic.

Yet rumors persist in Argentina and Brazil that Germans are offering to sign contracts for October delivery of goods in exchange for foodstuffs. Further, they are offering to accept heavy penalites if they fail to make deliveries.

Some observers believe the Germans, by the moves, are trying (1) to forestall orders elsewhere (principally in the U. S.), and to (2) muddy the waters of Pan-American unity by spreading the belief that Germany will win a quick victory.

In Short

Killed: Forty-three persons, in collision of Pennsylvania railroad passenger coach and freight train at Cuyahoga Falls.

Proposed: A Canadian army of 1,000,000 men for service at home, by War Services Minister Gardiner.

Agreed: That the strategic Aaland Islands lying between Finland and Sweden be demilitarized, by Finland, at the suggestion of the Soviet Union.

Renominated: For the Texas governorship, Gov. W. Lee ("Pass the Biscuits, Pappy") O'Daniel, by Democrats; U. S. Senator Connally also was renominated.

What They Did At Havana

Three touchy topics were to be acted upon when Pan-American delegates gathered at tropical Havana two weeks ago: the fate of European possessions in America, the safeguarding of American economic interests in a wolfish world, and subversive activity.

Standoffish Argentina sent an underling, stooped, suave Dr. Leopoldi Melo, instead of her foreign minister as others did. Melo arrived a day late and without power to act without cailing the home office.

He soon proved to be the only holdout. Patient U. S. Secretary Hull prodded him gently, showed sympathy for his viewpoint.

After a five-hour session last week-end Melo emerged, wiped perspiration from his bald head, and announced: "American solidarity has triumphed. We all made concessions."

For two days the conclave was a honeymoon. But on Monday night, it was revealed that his government would have to pass finally on the act dealing with foreign possessions.

Melo insisted that the move was entirely normal. Secretary of State Hull agreed. Later seven other nations made similar reservations.

After the conference Melo prepared to come on to Washington to present FDR with a letter from his President Ortiz. Before leaving he noted coldly that U. S. economic proposals for absorption of surpluses were superficial.

But what seems important is that the conference ended with the delegates of all 21 republics affirming America's solidarity. Here, in brief, is the action taken:

Foreign possessions. Delegates unanimously adopted the Act of Havana, which provides that any European possessions "in danger of becoming the subject matter of exchange of territories or sovereignty" will be administered temporarily by Americans.

If action has to be taken quickly, any one American nation can act first and call in the rest of the emergency committee later. Since only two-thirds of the republics are required to constitute the committee, a demur from Argentina will not be fatal.

Economics. The framework of a broad economic plan was established through which it may be possible to divert U. S. credits toward solving the surplus exports problems, and attempt to develop hitherto neglected Latin products of a non-competitive nature.

Subversive Activity. It was agreed that the Americas will collaborate against subverters even to the extent of challenging the "packing" of foreign embassies and consulates with undercover agents.

EVENING CEREMONY READ FOR COUPLE

Miss Marjorie Ann Gale, Robert Alden Hassinger Quietly Married Last Night In Informal Service at Church.

SIMPLICITY marked the marriage last night of Miss Marjorie Ann Gale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Gale, 310 West Fourth street, and Robert Alden Hassinger, 482 Davey avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Hassinger. Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church, read the ceremony at the church altar at 7:30 p. m.

Palms and ferns with beauty baskets of cut flowers and lighted candles in candelabra were used as decorations. Mrs. Bruce Rogers sang "Oh Promise Me" by DeKoven, and "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond. In addition to the two nuptial marches Mrs. H. H. Clingan, organist, played "Russian Romance" by Friml, "Liebestraum" by Liszt and "My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice."

For her marriage Miss Gale chose a peach street-length dress and white accessories and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Ralph Lang, who wore a navy and powder blue dress with white accessories, and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses. Max Stichler was best man and Charles Schlegel served as usher.

The bride's mother wore a black and white costume, as did Mrs. Hassinger, and both mothers wore gardenia corsages.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held for 25 guests at the Gale home. Later the couple left for a week's trip on Lake Erie. They will be at home after Aug. 13 at 47 Library court.

For traveling the former Miss Gale chose a navy blue redingote ensemble with white accessories. She attended Mansfield Senior high school, and has been employed at Kafer's Flowers. Mr. Hassinger, who is a member of Phi Sigma Chi social fraternity, also attended Mansfield high school, and is employed at the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

Guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Gale and daughter, Shirley, Charleston, W. Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Jarris, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Harmon, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sherer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Groff and Mrs. Dottie McFadden, all of Ashland.

HONOR HOSTESS.

When members of the Woholo class of the Evangelical Congregational church met yesterday at the home of Mrs. Ralph Rogers, they presented her with a shower of personal gifts. Games were played, and refreshments served. The next meeting will be with Miss Helen Stenstron, Smith avenue.

Dessert-Bridge Fetes Miss Wolfe

Another in the series of prenuptial parties honoring Miss Louise Wolfe, bride-elect of Edward Reaser of Ashland, was a dessert-bridge, given by Miss Mariann Stander yesterday afternoon at her home on Marion avenue.

Garden flowers decorated the small tables, and the diversion was in play at four tables. Mrs. Ralph Diffendoerfer of Ashland won the traveling prize, while score prizes were awarded to the honoree and Mrs. Deming Lowery.

The hostess presented Miss Wolfe with a gift of china in honor of the occasion. Out-of-town guests present for the affair were: Mrs. Arthur Vanosdall, jr., Miss June Freer, Miss Betty Jane Donley, Miss Harriet Reaser and Mrs. Diffendoerfer, all of Ashland.

Rehearsal Dinner Given At Club For Bridal Party

Following a rehearsal at St. Luke's Lutheran church yesterday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Finefrock entertained with a dinner party for their niece, Miss Carolyn Finefrock, and Rupert Beckstett of Lakewood, who will be married at 8 o'clock tonight.

Members of the bridal party were guests at last evening's affair, which was held at Westbrook Country club. A pink, blue, yellow, green and lavender color scheme was used on the dinner table, which was decorated with flowers of those shades in three pottery bowls and lighted green tapers. Place favors for the 16 guests were miniature brides, grooms and their attendants.

WILL ENTERTAIN.

Members of the Women's association of Westbrook Country club will entertain women from Ashland and Shelby Country clubs next Tuesday at 9 a. m., it was announced today. Pairings will be made at the club house. Winners last week were Mrs. C. C. Fish, Miss Mariann Stander and Mrs. Henry Talmage.

ENTERTAIN VISITORS.

Mrs. M. E. Carr and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Grissom, St. Louis, Mo., who are here visiting Mr. and Mrs. Gayle Ferrell, 181 Dawson avenue, were guests of honor at a recent picnic attended by 28 at the Devils Punch bowl. The evening was spent in playing cards.

There's more than a hint of the Hawaiian in the formal evening gown which Ginger Rogers wears in RKO Radio's "Lucky Partners." It's a chalk white crepe, cut in the slimmest lines. Over the skirt is a floor length "grass skirt" of silver bugle beads in long shimmering lines.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Woodville Club Plans 2 Outdoor Events In August

Plans for a wiener roast Aug. 9 and a picnic on Aug. 15, were formulated yesterday during a meeting of the Woodville Social club at the home of Mrs. Howard Mast on South Main road. Mrs. Albert Taylor was the associate hostess for this meeting, which was attended by 23 members and four guests, Mrs. Florence Brown of Cleveland, Mrs. Robert Mast, Miss Darlene Secrist and Miss Dorothy Jean Ulm.

The steak roast will be at the home of Mrs. Ora Yoha on the South Main road, and the picnic, with Miss Ida Swisher, Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Howard Mast in charge, will be held at North Lake park. The next regular meeting will be an event of Sept. 6 at Mrs. Yoha's home, with Mrs. Alice Cashell assisting.

Bunco was the diversion at yesterday's meeting, and score prizes were awarded to Mrs. G. H. Perry and Miss Secrist. Luncheon was served at the close of the games.

HAVE SESSION.

The regular meeting of the Lady Garfield Council, No. 24, Daughters of America, was held yesterday evening at Memorial hall, with Miss Ida Hunter in charge. Mrs. Ethel Metz and her committee made arrangements for the social hour which followed. The next meeting will be on Aug. 16.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, August 4.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds several adverse configurations excepting for spiritual, cultural and intellectual preoccupations. There are signs of a sudden precipitation of disturbing, erratic and possibly devastating situations which it will take the utmost control, poise, deliberation and prudence to compose without penalty or disaster.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of whirlwind adventures of an unpredictable nature. Tactful writings and correspondence may be helpful vehicles, but shun impetuous moves.

For Monday, August 5.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for splendid if not extraordinary opportunity for reaching high goals and the loftiest of ambitions on almost every phase of aspiration and ambition. Such expansive, generous and gratifying culmination may be the reward of long and arduous industry and application, patience and genuine worth and stability.

Those whose birthday it is should be assured of a year of the most glorious, generous and gracious recognition of patience, merit, stability and fidelity.

The word "mattress," of first importance in the lexicon of good sleep, comes from the Arabic word "materah," meaning a place where something is laid down. The English word comes directly from an old French form of the word, "materas."

ENTERTAIN COUSIN.

The Misses Laureine and Lucille Fetter, West Dickson avenue, entertained recently in honor of their cousin, Mrs. Harry Boyer, the former Lyda Mae Hughes. Game and contest prizes were won by the Misses Virginia Sanderson and Genevieve Buzinski who gave their awards to the honoree. A shower of miscellaneous gifts was presented to the bride after which luncheon was served.

GARDEN CLUBS MEET FOR REGULAR SESSIONS

Organizations Hold Luncheon Meetings; Members Present Papers; Make Arrangements For Future Activities.

GARDEN CLUB activities continued yesterday with the usual luncheon meetings at various homes. Mrs. David Shelley, Westwood avenue, entertained 21 members of the Town and Country Garden club at her home with a buffet luncheon. Mrs. Merritt A. Giles presided at the table.

A brief business meeting was conducted by Mrs. George Price, after which Mrs. Wilmot Peirce gave a paper on oriental poppies. The next meeting will be held Aug. 16 with Mrs. Eugene Smart, Sherman avenue, as hostess.

* * *

Mrs. L. W. Birch, vice president, conducted the routine business meeting of the Astowela Garden club yesterday when members met with Mrs. Frank Cummins, 21 Summit street. Mrs. W. L. Althouse assisted. Luncheon was served at small tables decorated with garden flowers.

A paper on gourds prepared by Mrs. A. R. Perl was read by Mrs. George Holland, and members of the club toured the garden and patio of the hostess' home.

The next meeting will be held Aug. 16 at the home of Mrs. Holland, with Mrs. A. L. Price assisting. Mrs. H. G. Balyeat will give a book review.

A picnic luncheon was served to members of the Johnny Appleseed Garden club yesterday at the Fernyak cabin, when Mrs. Carlton Fernyak entertained. Mrs. W. B. Ford presided at the table, and gladioli were used as decorations.

Members reviewed the club's horticultural work. The next meeting will be held Aug. 16 with Mrs. Louis Meisse, Glenwood boulevard.

thought which I've evolved from the silence. From darkness to daylight don't you think all the 'non-combatants'— children and women not needed for defense— ought to be housed in—say the library and Madge's little study on the first floor from which they could be gotten out of doors quickly in case Leslie's half-crazed brain should think of trying to set fire to the farmhouse or—"

His reply was prompt, for it is never his way to delay a decision.

"Thank you for a valuable—and vital—suggestion," he said. "And it greatly simplifies the instructions I am about to give you. Briefly, you are to notify every one in the house to lock their doors and keep to their rooms unless it is absolutely necessary to leave them. And from dark to daylight, as you suggest, I want all 'non-combatants' downstairs. The details of their housing I leave to you. But—what do you mean by your phrase 'women not needed for defense?' "

Lillian and I looked attentively at my father as he began to outline the things he wished us to do as soon as he should finish his instructions.

"I need not tell you," he began, "that from now on until after Leslie shall strike his final blow, with the consequent defeat which I confidently expect will be his, we must not relax our vigilance a single second. At that I do not expect his attack to come for another 24—perhaps even 48—hours for of course he is counting upon our ignorance of the secret passage which he has discovered, and so is taking his own leisurely time for his final onslaught."

"Father!" I said involuntarily—then stopped, flushing.

His brows contracted into an involuntary frown at the interruption, then cleared again. I discovered long ago in the first days after his long search for me ended, that he never resented things from me which would arouse quick anger on his part toward almost anyone else.

"Yes, my daughter," he said encouragingly.

"Please consider it unsaid," I pleaded. "It was something I should not ask."

He smiled at me indulgently.

"I think I know what is in your mind," he said, "and it is a most natural question. You are wondering why I do not gather all my forces and those of the state officials, and take Leslie by surprise at his own stronghold before he has a chance to attack us here. Wasn't that your question?"

"Yes, it was," I admitted a bit shamefacedly.

"It is a most logical question," he said, "and you are certainly entitled to my reasons for not following that course, especially as I have just given them to your husbands."

He paused for an instant, then went on, tapping the fingers of one hand against the palm of the other.

"In the first place," he said, "I can keep things in my own hands better here than I can if I call on more of the state police and other officers to surround Leslie's stronghold, as I should have to do, if I planned an attack upon him there.

"In the second place, success will be far more uncertain if we attack him than if we defend our position. He is too wily and experienced a campaigner not to have planned numberless ways of escape from his own place. But he patently is planning an offensive based upon his belief that we are ignorant of the secret staircase to the attic, up which I am sure he plans to bring all his men. We shall be able to trap them all. I am confident of it. Does that answer your question?"

"Of course," I said in hasty confusion, and my father's eyes went to Lillian's face, were evidently arrested there.

"What Richard calls your 'poker map' has slipped, my dear," he said, smiling. "You have a question, too, I infer."

"I wouldn't dream of keeping a secret from you, Chief?" she said with the audacity which is always forgiven her. "Here's a

CHAPTER VIII

The Blue Parrot, most glittering of those exhibition places that mushroom in New York's Fifty-fourth street, blazoned far and wide that it was the fastest, most furious, most fantastic playground on this or any other continent. That was it's night side.

But the Blue Parrot had a day side too. A dreamy mysterious side, of dim lights and muted music. To a limited clientele who could stand the financial strain, the Blue Parrot offered a luncheon rendezvous.

Husbands who discovered it never mentioned their find to their wives. The publicity man for the Blue Parrot had no worries about getting its luncheon attractions into the paper. His worry was to keep them out of the papers.

At two o'clock in the afternoon, with the Parrot quartet sobbing on its strings, Clara Marsh raised a frosted glass to her lips and said:

"It's marv-lous of you, Mr. Hess, being so nice to poor little me. 'Specially after what happened last night. Al Martino was jealous, that's why he acted so mean. Though why he should be, you can ask me. I'm sure I never gave him any encouragement. He's just supposed to be my guide, to look after me and see I get everything I want. You'd think he owned me, the way he acted."

* * *

The bulky man with the bald head, sitting alongside Clara Marsh at a wall table, patted her hand.

"Never mind, girlie," he said. "We fooled him. We put one over on him," the bulky man laughed, or rather he rumbled. "How's the headache, girlie?"

"It's almost gone. Only a teeny-weeny bit left."

"Then we'll have another glass of the medicine that cure's little girls' headaches." He signaled a waiter and named a famous brand of champagne.

"Tell him to put a cherry in it, Mr. Hess. I love cherries."

Mr. Hess tried not to shudder.

"So you're the Beauty Queen," he said, leaning forward and covering Clara with avid eyes. "I'll say they sure picked the right girl. I bet they stole you off a magazine cover. Yes sirree. I'll bet if I introduced you to an artist friend of mine here in town he'd beg you to let him paint you. I'll bet he'd say, 'Herman Hess, there is the little girl who is going to make me famous.' He would, so help me!"

"Oh, Mr. Hess——" (meaning go on Mr. Hess, don't stop please).

"Yes, he would, too. But I have a better idea. An idea that will make you famous—that is, even more famous than you are now. Why should we bother with an artist fellow when we have you? How would you like to go in the show business?"

Clara thought. "Don't let me faint. If I faint he might get scared and take back what he said."

She managed to say, "You mean—the—theater?"

"Better than the theater. The theater is old-timey where we live, girlie—a lot of old-timers raring and ranting around the stage. Who wants to sit away out front and watch a lot of old-timers show off. No sirree. The live wires want to be on the stage, too, having a good time with the actors and actresses. We want to talk to them, dance with them, buy them champagne, not just look at them. That's why you find all the live wires in the restaurants, in the night clubs nowadays. That's why all the stars are tromping over one another trying to get engagements in the night clubs. They know where to find the lives wires. They know which side their bread is buttered on."

Herman Hess paused for effect.

"I guess they do," Clara said. "I guess they're pretty smart."

"Yes sirree." The effect was good. Herman swelled with pomposity. "Now you take the Blue Parrot. Best club in town. Best people. Celebrities. Why I've seen the nights here when you couldn't move without rubbing a celebrity's elbow. Where's the first place a big Hollywood star goes when he or she comes to New York? The Blue Parrot! If you want to be seen, if you want to be in the swim, go to the Blue Parrot'."

"It's marv'lous here. Simply marv'lous."

"I'll say it is. That's what all the live wires say. So what happens? Every big name actor and actress in the show business wants to play in the Blue Parrot. I know. The proprietor's an old friend of mine. He tells me how the biggest stars on the stage, the biggest singers and dancers, drive him crazy begging him to let them do their stuff in the Blue Parrot. He laughs at them. He don't want actors and actresses. He wants girls, beautiful girls. That's what live wires pay their money to see, beautiful girls. Get beautiful girls in a place and you have to lock the doors to keep out the crowd."

"It must be marv-lous to act—I mean to play—in a place like the Blue Parrot," Clara said wistfully.

Marvelous? It's a miracle. But miracles happen, girlie. Yes sirree. Now that's where I come in. Herman Hess, the miracle man. What would you do if I got a spot for you in the floor show of the Blue Parrot?"

* * *

Now Clara was sure she was going to faint. She emptied her glass at a gulp. "Why Mr. Hess! Mr. Hess! I don't know what I'd do. I guess I'd just simply—fall dead."

"No, you wouldn't either. You'd call me Herman and you'd say, 'Herman, you're the best friend I ever had. Herman where do we go from here?' "

The wine of the grape and the wine of unbelievable promise were spinning in Clara's head like a merry-go-round. She had difficulty focusing on Herman's pudgy face.

"But, Mr. Hess, there's nothing 'specially I can do—I've never played on the stage or in a night club—"

"A girl like you don't have to know the show business. All she has to do is be herself, Girlie, you're in luck. My friend, the proprietor, is putting on a beauty pageant in the Blue Parrot in a couple of weeks. He's putting on a beauty pageant, and he's putting you in his show."

"Mr. Hess—Herman!" Music and faces and glasses and Hermans were all jumbled together.

Saturday. In the Bon Ton Department Store, Millville, Marilyn Marsh waited on a customer in the book department.

She said, "I'm sure you will find this practical dictionary a friend. It's compact, so you can tuck it into any handy corner, and it is the most complete in the market, for its size."

"Did you say a dollar and fifty-nine cents?" the customer asked.

"Yes. A dollar fifty-nine. The regular price is one seventy-five. We're having a sale on books, so you've found a bargain. Could I interest you in some of our other books? We have a fine collection."

"Thanks. Not today. Here we are—the exact change. And much obliged for your advice."

Marilyn turned toward the cash register.

"Hi Sis," young Bill Marsh appeared from behind a pile of classics, his face moist with perspiration, his red hair tousled." I got something for you. A letter."

"A letter?" Marilyn took the extended envelope from a grimy hand. "But couldn't it wait until I came home from the store? Bill, look at your hands."

"Aw gee, Sis, I'm sorry but I was playing ball and I came home to get a drink and the mailman brought this letter. He said it was special delivery and I'd have to sign for it. Mums wasn't home so I signed my name and I looked at the printing up in the corner of the envelope and I saw it was from the Clarco company that gave you all that money. So I beat it down here without stopping to do anything. I bet I smashed all the track records ever was."

Marilyn studied the envelope: "Clarco Company, 0077 Fifth Avenue, New York City."

"I hope Clarco hasn't made a mistake," she said. "Mixed the names on the jingles—changed their minds—"

"Aw, Sis! They couldn't do that. It wouldn't be fair. Put it back in the envelope. Pretend you didn't get it. Aw, gee, if I hadn't gone home for a drink—"

"Would that be fair, Bill? Is lying fair, is cheating fair? Besides you signed for the letter, so you see, the truth would catch up with us. It always does. Well now, let's see—" Marilyn scanned the page hastily, drew it closer, formed her lips into an "Oh" but was overcome to voice it.

GALION — Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Volk funeral home here for the infant son of Roland and Ethel Northrup Morrow, of 608 East Irving street, Bucyrus. Rev. Carl Hoch officiated and burial was made in Iberia cemetery.

The child was born Thursday noon at the Bucyrus City hospital where it died at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

STUDY GERMAN DAKAR ACTION

Port Would Be Important to Nazis in Any Thrusts Against America.

dies would be a prime objective of the enemy. Martinique could serve as an admirable advance landing place as one of the short island steps leading to Porto Rico and Cuba.

A hostile force entrenched in the West Indies would be in a position to operate submarines lurking in the concealed coastal waters, while the Gulf of Mexico is too confined to permit large-scale operations by a defending fleet. To capture New Orleans would be the principal purpose of an offensive from the West Indies, the ultimate intent being to drive northward along the Mississippi river.

If the enemy were able to occupy Canada a corresponding drive southward would be attempted with the aim of uniting the northern and southern thrusts to cut America in two, with the Mississippi as the dividing line.

To divide the defending forces of a belligerent is always one of the fundamental strategic aims of an army acting on the offensive. Especially would this plan be essential if there were any possibility of success in invading a country as large as the United States. Secondary operations along the Atlantic coast might be attempted at the same time, but domination of the Mississippi would be the primate objective of the assailants.

During the war of 1812—the only time the United States has been seriously invaded—this same strategy was followed. The early land battles of that conflict were fought in Ohio as the enemy sought to move westward. The last battle was fought at New Orleans.

Any future attempt to wage war against the United States on its own soil would certainly follow the main strategy of the war of 1812, if the enemy believed it had a chance of success.

The only way the enemy's high command could plan a possible victory, based on severing the United States, would rest on the initial seizure of the West Indies.

If any enemy were allowed to select its own trans-Atlantic port for such a venture, it would doubtless choose Dakar above all others. Dakar would become a menace to western hemisphere security beyond any doubt if it were in the hands of a powerful military nation unfriendly to the United States and ambitious to expand its power on this side of the Atlantic. Developments at Dakar thus will require close observation by the western hemesphere nations if its possession passes out of French hands as the result of the European war.

BRILLIANT CHURCH WEDDING OCCURS AT GALION TODAY

GALION — All white was Galion's first August church wedding at 9:30 o'clock this morning at St. Patrick's Catholic church, when Kathryn M. Unterwagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Unterwagner of North Pearce street, Galion, exchanged vows with J. Fred Schmidt, son of George L. Schmidt and Mrs. A. L. Schmidt of Columbus.

Ferns, palms, baskets of white gladioli, and lighted tapers in candelabra provided the setting before which the single ring ceremony was read by Rev. Fath William Killoran.

During the nuptial mass sung by the church choir, the solo parts were sung by Herbert Black. The organist, Mary Graham, played several nuptial numbers and the traditional wedding marches.

White marquisette fashioned the bridal gown which was made with tight bodice and long sleeves trimmed with rose point lace, a full skirt and long train. The four-tiered illusion veil, with English half veil was caught to a halo cap of lace with seed pearl trim. A single strand of pearls was worn with this, and the bridal arm bouquet was of white delphinium, and larkspur with center corsage of gardenias.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was preceded to the altar by her maid of honor, Mary Kay Schmidt of Columbus, sister of the bridegroom; and two bridesmaids, Adelaide Boyd of Galion, and Minetta Schmidt of Columbus, another sister of the bridegroom. All of the attendants wore white marquisette gowns. They carried cascade bouquets of white gladioli edged in yellow, and wore Juliet caps of braided white net with short veils.

George Schmidt, jr., of Columbus, was his brother's best man.

Ushers who seated the guests, the church being filled for the occasion, were Alfred Kirkham of Columbus, friedd of the couple; the bride's brothers, Joseph, jr., and Carl Unterwagner both of Galion; and Omar Wallace of Galion, a friend of the family.

Mrs. Unterwagner, mother of the bride, wore a white printed chiffon with matching accessories, and purple flowers were used in her shoulder corsage to harmonize with the colors in her dress.

The bridegroom's mother wore navy and white chiffon. Her corsage was of pink roses and blue delphinium.

Following the ceremony, there was a breakfast and reception at the home of the bride's parents. Nearly 100 guests were present.

Later the couple left for an extended trip to Chicago and through Wisconsin. For traveling the bride wore a white dressmaker suit with pink accessories, and the gardenia corsage from her bridal bouquet.

Mr. Schmidt and his bride will make their home at 3012 Sunset Drive, Olentangy Village, Columbus. In Columbus he is associated with his father in the J. Fred Schmidt Packing company. He was graduated from the Holy Family high school and attended Xavier university, Cincinnati. He is president of the Bullies, Professional Football organization of Columbus, and a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The bride was graduated from Galion high school in 1937. She attended Office Training School in Columbus, and until recently was employed in the offices of the Public Employes Retirement System.

STATE TO START WORK ON FOUR HIGHWAY JOBS

Projects Costing $100,000 To Get Under Way in County During Week.

Work on at least four state highway projects totaling more than $100,000 is scheduled to start in a few days in Richland county, while a $100,000 county road resurfacing job will be completed by the end of this month, highway officials said today.

The major state job on which work will be started immediately calls for widening and resurfacing with asphaltic concrete of 4.67 miles of route 13 north of Five Points in Richland and Huron counties.

Contract for the work was awarded to the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company. The entire project is expected to cost nearly $75,000.

Louis Dehmer, Tiffin contractor, has contract for resurfacing about four miles of route 61 south from Shelby to the Crawford county line and nearly 50 miles of other roads in Crawford and Ashland counties. The total cost of the work will be 43,264.

Other routes scheduled for resurfacing this summer include about seven miles of route 98 south of Plymouth, two and a half miles of route 39 near Lucas, and a section of route 95 between Fredericktown and Butler.

The big county resurfacing job is about half done, and work has just been started on the Shelby-Ontario road in Springfield township, County Engineer Howard Sword said.

Workmen have just completed a 2.36 miles section of the Pleasant Valley road in Monroe township. The Olivesburg-Fitchville and Possum Run roads will be resurfaced later this month under the same contract.

In all, nearly 19 miles of major county roads will be resurfaced with bituminous materials, Sword said.

tacular attraction that has thrilled thousands in the paste two days of the fair. The ascension will be given late this afternoon provided wind conditions do not delay the act until early evening.

The fairground was jammed last night by a crowd which arrived early and stayed late.

This morning's program saw the conclusion of the Junior Olympics, athletic field and track meet, in which more than 250 youngsters participated during the two mornings the event was held. The Olympics formed a part of children's day events.

After tonight's show, exhibits and concessions will be removed and by late tomorrow fair officials expected that practically all the display halls will be empty.

Judging of livestock and produce exhibits was concluded yesterday.

NAVY READY TO TAKE ON JAPAN

Quick Victory Seen by U. S. Naval Command in Event of War With Nippon.

bargo export of American aviation gasoline and scrap iron to Japan—an action taken about a week ago.

If Japan went to war against the United States, the navy's first move, it was understood, would be establishment of a blockade along a line embracing Hong Kong, Cavite in the Philippine Islands, Guam, and southern Kamchatka.

Rupture of Japanese overseas supply lines caused by such a blockade would force Tokyo either to send its fleet out to challenge the American fleet, or keep its warships safe but impotent at home behind the protection of shore batteries.

In event of a battle, the high command has informed Mr. Roosevelt, the sur rior quality and quantity of U. S. tonnage, plus the superior morale and gunnery of U. S. personnel, would insure annihilation of the Japanese fleet, and leave this country sufficient sea power to guard the Panama canal and station some units in the Atlantic. The latter step, the navy believes, would be necessary only if the British fleet were destroyed or surrendered.

if he happened to be looking into the "cage."

When The News-Journal cameraman, fortified with leather gloves, lifted the bittern from his box to snap a picture, the bird lashed out with beating wings, slashing claws, and jabbing back. Right there he maintained his reputation as a blitzbird for all time, even if he was tamed long enough for the photographer to "see the birdie."

At noon yesterday the bird was released along Armstrong's run by County Conservation Officer C. I. Kimmel who explained that the bittern was classed as wildfowl under state law and could not be held in captivity. Kimmel had been called to the cafe by Matthes and had identified the blitzcritter as an American bittern.

He said the bird flew away nimbly with honks of relief when freed shortly after noon.

Bitterns inhabit marshy ground along streams, Kimmel explained, and are comparatively solitary creatures. They are adebt at hiding themselves and use their beaks fiercely when attacked or when their young are molested.

They are variously known as pokes, stake drivers, thunder-pumpers, bog bulls, and Indian hens.

They emit a peculiar cry which begins with a hiccough and ends with a loud "plunk-a-lunk." Frequently they make forays into meadows to seek food. But how the bird got to South Main street remains a mystery unless he had heard that Battery D was going up to Sparta, Wis., for blitzkrieg practice and felt that he was peculiarly talented as a volunteer.

—Which, the boys at the Office say, he was.

Sons of Herman Stop All-Stars for 16th Straight Triumph

Reds Suffer 1st Slump of Year; Boston Takes 2

Cincy Loses Five Out of Six Contests; Calls Derringer to Halt Streak Today.

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

HOLD onto your hats, boys, the Cincinnati Reds are riding that roller coaster.

The National league champions, whom everybody said couldn't slump because they had pitchers who just couldn't be beaten in succession, have managed to lose five out of their last six games.

That kind of travelling has got to be labelled a slump, even if it ends right there and the Reds start winning again. They still have one claim unshaken, they haven't lost more than three games in a row this season

They dropped one of their dearest possessions yesterday when the Boston Bees humiliated them with two victories, 10-3 and 4-3. It was the first time that Cincinnati had lost a doubleheader this year. The champs had won ten and split five.

Before the session yesterday the last place Bees had lost nine straight games. But Casey Stengel's lads couldn't have been any more fearful of playing the champions six games in three days than the Reds were of facing the Bees.

* * *

Boston has been murderous to the Reds all year and their triumphs yesterday gave them an even break for the dozen times the clubs have met. This made the Bees the only team in the league over which the champs don't have an advantage.

They still have doubleheaders to play today and tomorrow and the Reds may be able to recoup their record. Cincy nominated Derringer in the first game today.

The only runs they were able to get off Nick Strincevich's six-hit hurling in the first game came on a three-run homer by Frank McCormick. The second game went 12 innings before the Bees finally loaded the bases and rookie Chet Ross singled home the deciding run.

The Reds' difficulties would have been more costly except that the Brooklyn Dodgers lost and the third place New York Giants divided a doubleheader.

The shorthanded Chicago Cubs edged out the Dodgers 4-3 with busy Claude Passeau striking out the last two batters in a rescue act that gave Larry French his 11th victory of the year.

Babe Young hit two homers, one in the ninth inning, to give the Giants a 5-4 verdict over the St. Louis Cardinals in their first game, but Carl Doyle checked the New Yorkers on seven hits in the nightcap to win 3-1.

The American league situation remained unchanged with Detroit a game in front as both the Tigers and the Cleveland Indians were whipped.

Joe Cronin hit for the cycle—a home run, triple, double and single—to guide the Boston Red Sox to a 12-9 triumph over the Tigers. Jimmie Foxx also hit his 23rd homer and young Dominic DiMaggio smacked one with two on to rout Buck Newsom, although the league's leading pitcher wasn't charged with the loss.

The New York Yankees pummelled the Indians with 13 hits in a 10-2 game that was scarred by nine errors. Lefty Marius Russo pitched six-hit ball and both the runs against him were unearned.

The best hurling in several days, however, was a two-hitter turned in by Southpaw Thornton Lee of the Chicago White Sox in beating the Washington Senators 10-2. Lee missed a shutout when Jim Bloodworth homered with one on, but this blow became insignificant in the face of a 16-hit onslaught by the White Sox.

Bob Harris of the St. Louis Browns shutout the Philadelphia Athletics 5-0 in a night game although he gave eight hits to four that his teammates collected. Two of the latter were homers and two runs scored on a wild throw by Benny McCoy.

* * *

The Pittsburgh Pirates also were held to four hits for nine innings in a night game with the Phillies, but they bunched four more in the tenth to win 5-2.

Safety Cabs Clash With Newark Club

Strengthened by the addition of Pitchers Dale McKinley and Harold Geiger, two of Mansfield's leading moundsmen, the Safety Cabs will clash with the touted Newark Independents in a softball doubleheader at North Lake park Sunday.

The Cabbies, who will have five of the players selected on the Mansfield Wrecking company All-Star squad on their roster, will nominate McKinley to handle the mound duties in the opener at 1:30 p. m.

The All-Stars playing with the team are McKinley, Garner Judy, Joe Smollen, Gene Yarman and John Hallabrin.

In the Newark lineup will be a face familiar to basketball fans. He is Marzano, former Newark high star and now a teammate of Hallabrin at Ohio State university. Marzano, who played with Newark high's state champions several years ago, was selected at a guard position on the All-Star Ohio team. He will play short stop for the invaders.

The Independents come here sporting a record of 12 wins in 16 starts. Their ace moundsman, Feldner, will oppose McKinley in the first encounter.

De Milo Salon's foursome was still out in front in The News-Journal Women's league race yesterday, although they suffered a 3 to 0 defeat at the hands of the Bates Candies in an 18-hole match at Possum Run.

Harriet Roth of the Candies led the attack by clicking off an 88 for the 18-holes. She defeated Vera Oberlander of the De Milos, who netted a 97.

Thelma Linster, who holds down the number one position on the Golden-Russell team, walked off with low-scoring honors by netting an 80. Miss Roth's 88 was the next lowest score.

The Golden-Russells and Bates Candies are now tied for second place, just one point behind the league-leading De Milos. The Golden-Russell club defeated the Meder Recreations by a 3 to 1 tally yesterday.

MEET FOR CROWN

CANTON —(INS)— Warren and Springfield met today for the Ohio Junior American Legion baseball championship.

'Si' Wachsberger Cops 1st Match From Don Pluck, 6-0, 6-3, at Liberty.

By GEORGE SATTLER

ALTHOUGH some of the veterans of former city tennis tournaments may not realize it, they may have plenty of trouble with a newcomer in the tournament this year.

He is "Si" Wachsberger, one of the topnotch court artists on the Miami university tennis team last year when Miami won the Buckeye conference title.

Last night "Si" won his first match, defeating Don Pluck 6-0, 6-3, at Liberty park.

* * *

In the same bracket with the Miami star is Warner Peterson, who walked off with the Woodlawn tennis singles crown a few weeks ago when the Woodlawn club staged its annual tournament. Peterson has been picked by many fans as the most likely wearer of the 1940 City tennis crown.

If everything goes well with the two lads and they keep out of trouble, the two stars will meet later in the tournament.

Of course top-seeded Thornton Moore, winner of last year's City tournament, is expected to give a good account of himself. However, Moore was beaten by Peterson in the Woodlawn tournament this year.

* * *

Bob Keefe, last year's runner-up in the singles division, can also be counted on to make the race for the single's title interesting. Keefe is considered one of the best younger tennis players in the city and his game should be considerably better this year.

* * *

One doubles match has already been played. Francis Brown and Bob Ellison defeated Stough and Hammer last night at Johns park, 6-2, 6-1. Enos and Bob Spear have won the doubles crown for the past four years. They have not played their opening match as yet.

Tinkeys Score 8-1 Victory

Winebrenner Stops Crestline With 3 Hits.

Coasting easily behind the three-hit hurling of "Stub" Winebrenner, the Tinkey Lumbers rolled up an 8 to 1 victory over the Crestline Kiwanis club softball team yesterday at Forest Gardens

* * *

Throughout the seven innings of play, the Tinkey ace fanned twelve and walked none. He was hit hard only once when Ackerman, Crestline moundsman, found him for a double.

* * *

The Tinkeys scored three times in the second inning, four times in the fifth and once in the sixth for their 8-run total. The Kiwanis team tallied its lone run in the fourth when Reardon, Kiwanis firstsacker, came home on Ackerman's double.

Indians Wonder Why Yanks Aren't Weak

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians looked today for some evidence, other than official standings, that the New York Yankees are a second division club.

* * *

The tribe, only one game out of the lead, has lost eight of its 15 games with the fifth-place Yanks—the last of these defeats coming yesterday as Cleveland bowed 10 to 2 in the opener of a three-game series.

* * *

As the Indians tried a second time to avenge their rout by the champs during the last eastern trip, Al Smith went to the mound for them today seeking his 11th victory. Lefty Gomez opposed him.

Young Marius Russo held Cleveland to six hits while New York reached three Indian hurlers for 13 and capitalized on five errors.

But the Yanks erred too—four times giving Cleveland both its runs.

Fumbles by Beau Bell and Roy Weatherly helped New York score twice in the second inning. Misplays by Russ Peters and Ben Chapman started the third and fifth innings, in each of which New York scored three runs.

Charley Keller led the visitors with three hits, but the attack was general. Red Rolfe, hitless in 25 consecutive times at bat, got a single and a double.

Starter Al Milnar was charged with the defeat, allowing five runs in three innings. Joe Dobson, Nate Andrews and Johnny Humphries followed him but only Humphries was effective, shutting out the Yanks in the one frame he worked.

* * *

The Indians scored first in the second inning. Hal Trosky doubled and raced home when Joe Gordon fumbled Peters' grounder. Trosky also scored the second tally, in the ninth. Saved by Babe Dahlgren's fumble, he crossed the plate when Peters tripled.

* * *

Peters replaced Second Baseman Ray Mack, who may be out of the lineup for a week with torn muscles in his left side. The Yanks were short of the services of Joe DiMaggio, whose ankle was injured as he ran into a fence at Detroit Thursday.

Herman Team Invades Akron to Meet Rival.

With two triumphs safely tucked away in the series with the Mansfield Wrecking company All-Stars for the city softball championship, the undefeated Sons Herman combine treks to Akron Sunday to tackle the Jim Brown club. Jim Fullager is expected to be Manager Frank Beeber's choice to face the Akron city champions. Beeber today requested that all Herman players report at the Sons of Herman hall at 9:30 a. m. Sunday. The contest will start at 1 p. m.

Braves Suffer 12-6 Beating From Pandas

Lima Pounds Two Hurlers In Registering 10th Win.

Battling to climb back up to the .500 per cent mark in the Ohio State league standings, the Mansfield Braves encountered another snag last night when they dropped a one-sided 12 to 6 decision to the pace-making Pandas at Limas.

* * *

The Braves sent Tony Angaran to the hill and Manager Stover had to rush Bob Arnold to his rescue in the fifth when Lima dented the plate six times.

* * *

Mansfield performs against the Pandas at Lima again tonight and will come back to the Fairground to engage the Pandas in a double header Sunday. It marks the first home appearance of the Braves since Monday and the first tilt will start at 1.30 p. m. Both games will be played in the afternoon.

Whatever hopes the Braves had of winning the game last night faded when the pitching failed to hold up.

Lima punched over three tallies in the third, added six in the fifth and climaxed its scoring with three runs in the eighth as the club marked up its 10th straight win. It was Lima's 59th win of the year against 23 defeats.

Lima secured a 9 to 1 advantage before Ed Evans, southpaw, let up and the Braves finally scored three runs in the seventh and two more in the eighth.

* * *

Stover, juggling his lineup, sent Walt Missler, first-string catcher to third place in place of Dick Morse, who has been suspended. Don Wentz replaced Missler behind the plate and paced the Braves' nine-hit attack with a home run. Hal Hundemer and Howard Beals each pounded out two singles. Missler added a triple to the attack.

* * *

At Sunday's twin bill the knot hole league gang and the Mansfield Boy Scouts will be guests of the Braves.

Unbeaten Outfit Scores Two Runs In 7th to Win

Lapine Hits Wild Streak and Hermans Emerge With Second Victory In City Softball Series.

By CHARLES MARTIN, News-Journal Sports Editor.

APPROXIMATELY 2,000 Mansfield softball fans are wondering today if there is a team in the state that can defeat the Sons of Herman.

Fans selected an All-Star team sponsored by the Mansfield Wrecking company from the Y. M. C. A. leagues to tackle the Hermans in a five-game series for the city softball championship—but it now appears as though the Hermans cannot be stopped.

Bad judgment of a fly ball gave the Hermans a 4 to 3 win in the opening game, Thursday, and Manager Frank Beeber's crack outfit came back yesterday to score a 7 to 5 win in the second contest at Liberty park before a crowd estimated by park officials at 2,000.

Bob Lapine worked on the hill for the All-Stars and things looked bad in the early innings. He settled down, but in the seventh he began to weaken and before he could retire the side the Hermans forged into a 6 to 5 lead.

Manager Nick Wagner was unable to send in another hurler for his moundsmen—"Stub" Winebrenner of the Tinkey Lumbers and Dale McKinley of the Alta Lumbers were not on hand.

Lapine was wild and he had trouble most of the game locating the plate. Twice wild pitches gave the Hermans single runs.

The Hermans piled up a 4 to 1 win with Freddie Carver on the hill. Then in the seventh the All-Stars began to pound Carver and before Beeber could send Jim Fullager to his aid Carver gave up four runs

This splurge gave the All-Stars a 5 to 4 lead. It didn't last long. Lapine retired the first two men to face him in the last of the seventh. At this point he walked George Berry, Gerald Schaefer and George Hummel.

Fullager hit a grounder to Nick Weber and he allowed it to slip through his hands and two runners scored. Hummel attempted to steal home and Dick Henshaw tagged him for the third out. Those markers gave the Hermans a 6 to 5 advantage and they added a run in the eighth to put the game in the ice box.

Both contests have gone to the Hermans, but the All-Stars have given them a scare. Who Wagner will use in the third game at Liberty park at 6 p. m. Monday is a mystery today.

From all indications it appears as though McKinley and Fullager will tangle on the mound. Wagner will use all the top-notch Y. M. C. A. league players available in an effort to stop the Hermans, who have registered 16 straight triumphs.

While the Hermans have won both tilts the fans saw two thrilling ball games. The Herman combine has played brilliant ball and a few breaks has given the club the edge so far.

Whether or not the Hermans win the third straight game is a question, but the Liberty park officials are preparing to handle the record turnout Monday.

Ed Henrich was the batting star for the Hermans last night with a pair of doubles, while Weber pounded out two singles for the All-Stars. Bob Boyd shared hitting honors for the All-Stars when he came to bat against Carver in the seventh with the bases loaded and cracked out a single. Al Stickler produced the first All-Star run with a home run in the fifth inning. His clout went over "Buck" Foreman's head and bounded against a car in left field.

OPS Softball Combine Tops Elks In Loop

Trims Lodge Team, 13-8; Zeides Leads Attack.

Ohio Public Service's cellar-dwelling softball combine handed the second-place Elks club team a 13 to 8 defeat in a Y. M. C. A. Club league contest yesterday.

* * *

Airhart was on the mound for the OPS, allowing the Elks 11 hits. The Servicemen found Wolf, Elk hurler, for 16 safeties.

* * *

Pete Zeides of the OPS led the batters with a circuit smash and two singles. Mott of the OPS got a triple and two singles.

Leading hitter for the Elks team was Fisher, Elk outfielder, who smashed out a triple and two singles, scoring three of the eight runs tallied by the Elks.

In the other Club league contest last night, the Schoolmasters won over the Catholic Foresters on a forfeit, running their total of wins in the Club league to eight without a defeat.

Normally about half of the furs used in the United States come from abroad. If continued importation of these furs is cut off by war, the supply of American fur-bearing animals will be in danger of depletion or even extermination, in the case of some species. There is a great need for more effective fur-animal conservation. Since the federal government has no jurisdiction over any fur animals, except for their proper management on federally owned areas, the responsibility is up to the states.

TAKE OUT INSURANCE

Making your contract in rubber bridge is so much more important than getting an extra trick that it will pay you to give up all hope for the latter in order to insure the success of the main enterprise. Plenty of declarers come to grief because they seek every trick that might possibly be made, even though doing so injects a risk which could be avoided.

West's short suit lead of the heart 6 started the declared on the laziest kind of a plan. He saw at a glance that if hearts, diamonds and spades would all break for him, he could make a grand slam by then taking the club A for the thirteenth trick. Reading the heart 6 as probably the top of a trebleton, he tried that suit first and was happy to see it work out as he desired.

Next the spades were attacked, but they didn't break. The contract could still be made, however, if the diamonds were divided, but they also proved to be distributed on a four-two basis. The contract was now hopeless, regardless of how the missing club honors were located, unless East held both and would make the foolish mistake of not playing one of them on the small card lead from dummy. South tried the club 10 on the first round of the suit, but West won with the K and then cashed the setting spade.

Proper safety would have consisted of first finessing the club 10, deliberately giving up a trick to the opponents, then trying the three suits in succession. After only one of them broke fortunately, the declarer could have finessed the clubs a second time and would thus have made his contract. The reason would be that the one trick he lost was before West had a set-up fourth-rounder in spades.

STOCK MARKET SHOWS SPOTTY RECOVERY TODAY

Many Leading Issues Inclined to Lag; Boardrooms Search For Mart Clues.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market displayed spotty recovery tendencies today, although many leaders inclined to lag.

Boardrooms, in the search for market clues, studied the survey of the Federal Reserve board disclosing the nation's department store sales for the week ended July 27 exceeded the comparable 1939 period by 5 per cent, despite one of the severest heat waves in many years. In the preceding week the year-to-year increase amounted to 9 per cent.

Followers of the steels noted forecasts deliveries of metal to the British of between 400,000 and 500,000 tons a month would be maintained for some time to come. The British purchasing mission also was understood to have taken over about 75 per cent of the motor trucks ordered in this country by the former French government.
